Winston's Death Investigated By Coroner's Jury

Verdict Of Unavoidable Accident Rendered After Hearing The Evidence

SECOND DEATH FROM ACCIDENT ANNOUNCED

Mrs. Mary Maga Dies Last Night And Mrs. Celesnak In Critical Condition

"We find that Jefferson Winston came to his death in the Ellwood City hospital on August 31, 1930, from injuries received when struck by the automobile of Walter Mora on the Ellwood-Wampum road, and we believe that the accident was unavoidable."

This was the verdict returned by a jury empaneled by Coroner J. P. Caldwell after evidence had been taken at the office of Squire James Glover in Wampum last night. The jury was composed of Charles Ferguson, James Robertson, Myrtle Brown, H. J. McCready, P. M. Miles and W. Henry.

Second Death Results.
While the inquest was being held word came that Mrs. Mary Maga of Koppel, who was injured in the accident in which Winston was killed, had just died in the Providence hospital at Beaver Falls. Mrs. Maga was an occupant of the car driven by Walter Mora. She sustained a fractured pelvis and other injuries in the accident. She was 40 years of age and leaves a husband and several children.

It was reported from the hospital this morning that Katherine Celesnak, also of Koppel, who was seriously injured in the accident, also having her pelvic bone broken, is still in a critical condition.

Was Changing Tire.

Evidence at the coroner's inquest last night showed that Jefferson Winston, covered, of South Mercer street, this city, had been to the home of a friend at Chewton on last Saturday evening. He was returning home between 11 and 12 o'clock at night. There were four other colored persons in the car with him. A tire went flat and he stopped on the outer edge of a curve at the foot of the viaduct incline leading to the Wampum bridge to repair it. While this was being done a car driven by Walter Mora of Chewton crashed into him.

Position of Car.

Amos Grimes, who was in the Winston car, testified that after the car had stopped he sat down on the bank while Winston and Arthur Frazier started to change the tire. While they were at work the Mora car struck them and Winston was fatally injured.

Grimes was uncertain as to the exact position of the Winston car on the road, but was of the opinion that the right hand wheels were off the concrete about nine or ten inches, front and rear wheels on the left being on the concrete. He said the rear light was burning, also headlights.

Arthur Powell also testified that the right hand wheels were a short distance off the concrete. He said the car kept sliding toward the ditch as it was jacked up. All lights were burning.

Mrs. Anna Powell, occupant of the car, estimated that the right rear wheel which was being repaired was about nine or ten inches off the concrete. She also said all lights were burning.

Car All on Concrete.

Dr. Thomas Duff of Wampum, testified that he had been to Chewton seeing a patient and was returning home. There was a car ahead of him.

CAMP RICHARDSON, Cal., Sept. 5.—I bet those two Frenchmen land in Fort Worth instead of Dallas. They will naturally be looking for the biggest town.

Mayor Walker pulled a good one when he said "The Atlantic Ocean is a two-way street now."

Heart-Gripping Story Of Hardships Suffered By Polar Martyrs Ends Temporarily

By ARNE KILDAL

TROMSOE, Norway, Sept. 5.—The heart-gripping story how Salomon Auguste Andree and his two companions courageously fought the bitter blasts of polar wastes and perished one by one after their attempt to fly across the top of the world in a balloon had failed will be temporarily ended today.

The Swedish scientific commission experts who have examined the two bodies recovered by Dr. Gunnar Horn and the camp relics he brought back in the Whaler Bratvaag announced that the first cursory examination was over and that a more detailed study will be continued in Sweden.

Prepare Statements

Before leaving however, the experts expected to issue a statement containing their views of the results of the Andree and some opinions in regard to the future revelations contained in the diaries. They added that the only additions made to their discoveries before work ceased was the finding in Andree's pockets of cartridges, a match box, three watches and a folding knife. It was believed he carried these as souvenirs for relatives of the companions who died before him.

The bodies of Andree and Strindberg, along with the various objects and precious diaries of the expedition, will be carefully packed and shipped to Sweden aboard the cruiser Svenskund, which 33 years ago steamed out of this harbor to carry the three hardy adventures to Spitzbergen for their start on man's first aerial argosy into the far north.

Services Planned

Memorial services will be held here before departure for the homeland, where preparations are under way to pay the returning martyrs deep and impressive tribute. The two bodies will be placed in coffins before removal from the Tromsoe Hospital.

The experts continued to believe that at least one of the diaries, the second one found strapped to the back of Andree and quite legible, would eventually unfold the full dramatic story of the ill-starred venture. Up to the present, however, they have gained sufficient fragmentary material to round out a graphic account of what probably occurred after Andree, Strindberg and Fraenkel sailed away in an oval gasbag in 1897 from Spitzbergen into the north pole latitudes.

Carried by fairly good winds for several hundred miles north but not as yet within reach of the north pole, the aerial argonauts finally came down in the midst of a desolate region of ice and snow far from the reach of civilization. Undaunted by the hardships which faced them and realizing almost at once that attempts to push on to the north pole would be futile, they turned back.

Carnegie Steel Plant Here In Excellent Shape

Thorough Overhauling Of Grounds And Building Make For A Model Plant

Plant and grounds of the Carnegie Steel Company have been greatly improved of late by a thorough cleaning and overhauling. Old machinery and debris of all kinds have been removed. Neatness and cleanliness in all sections of the plant are apparent and employees are taking a special interest in all measures which insure ease and safety of operation.

The new hospital has been equipped with all appliances necessary for the aid of employees who may be taken ill or who meet with accidents. One of the appliances is a modern X-ray machine with a room for the quick development of pictures. In all the new hospitals has thirteen rooms.

While the company has larger plants there are none that are in all around better shape than the New Castle plant. Among the company's activities are the Carnegie playgrounds and its system of welfare work which is highly appreciated by employees.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—One thousand persons were killed and 25,000 were injured by the tropical hurricane which swept through the city of San Domingo, capital of the Dominican republic, Wednesday afternoon, an official announcement of the Red Cross said today.

The report said the terrific winds destroyed 4,700 homes in the city, inflicted serious or slight damage to 200 others and 29,000 residents of the city are homeless.

Capt. He flew to Santo Domingo from San Juan yesterday afternoon. A copy of his cablegram was submitted to the White House for President Hoover's information.

Believe Storm Spent

Washington, Sept. 5.—Reports received today from Haiti and vessels off the Haitian coast, indicated the tropical hurricane which caused such a huge death toll and property damage Wednesday in Santo Domingo, capital of the Dominican Republic, has apparently spent its force and may not endanger the Florida coast.

Forecasters of the U. S. Weather Bureau who have followed the hurricane since it originated earlier in the week, said the latest reports received from the storm area are greatly encouraging.

Although they can not predict with any degree of accuracy whether the disturbance will gain increased intensity, they believe it will inflict no further damage.

NOT WORRIED BY INDEPENDENT PARTY

(International News Service)
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 5.—The G. O. P. motor caravan touring the state in the interest of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick and other candidates, left Springfield today for Decatur where a meeting will be held this afternoon. The week's schedule will be brought to a close at Danville tonight.

Speaking to a large and enthusiastic audience here last night, Mrs. McCormick declared: "I am a Republican. I am dry. As an American I believe in majority rule on any and all questions. On that basis I cheerfully leave my candidacy in the hands of the voters."

After criticizing the Nye investigating committee and characterizing the Democratic stand on the prohibition question as one of nullification, Mrs. McCormick paid her respects to Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove, who has announced her candidacy for the U. S. Senate as an Independent, in the following words:—"The policy of a third ticket in the Illinois senatorship race is important only in the respect that it strikes a blow at the cause of law enforcement in Illinois."

"It is calculated to split the vote against the Democratic candidate who stands for nullification and violation of the law enforcing prohibition, and nullification and violation of the constitution of the United States."

THERE WAS quite a storm at sea the night before and the next morning the two occupants and owners of a shack on the shore went out to see what damage had been caused.

On the beach almost in front of their shack they found a boat, evidently cast up by the waves. They pulled it up on the land a short distance but fearing that it might float away during high tide, they took it up around a bend of the shore on a stretch of beach belonging to a summer resort. Then they went to town, called on the town newspaper, and advertised the discovery of the boat.

On the day that the town paper was published the owner read of the find and came around to claim it. The two men of the shack went over where they had left the boat, brought it back to the man, who rewarded them for finding it. But immediately after that the summer resort filed suit against them for trespassing upon his property and carrying away a boat.

be foolhardy, they began a determined dash back towards Franz Josef land. Supplied with ammunition and food as well as camping outfit, the trio found nevertheless that human life in these terrifying regions of deadly blizzards and freezing blasts was a frail thing, snuffed out unless guarded with every breath. No diary was needed to tell of the tortuous steps and heartrending hours over ice georges and treacherous snowfields, blinded at times by furious blizzards.

One day, it seemed from first reports, Andree and Strindberg unstrapped themselves from their sleds long enough to bury a dead comrade, the first of three explorers to succumb before the arctic rigors. Some day, perhaps, his grave will be found.

Andree and Strindberg fought their way back to white island, 200 miles from the spot where the balloon collapsed. Here they set their camp, a tiny dot in a vast white waste. Here too, was written the end of the fatal venture an dthe beginning of an epic discovery that 32 years later thrilled a blase world.

Investigators examining the relics of the expedition were inclined to believe that Andree had good reason for pitching camp in that desolate place. Evidence indicated that Strindberg, after valiantly struggling back to White Island, was a sick man and ready to die. The tenderest care Andree must have lavished upon him was of no avail, and for the second time the leader of the expedition buried a dead comrade.

DALLAS EXTENDS FINE GREETING TO COSTE-BELLONTE

Are Up At Dawn

The Frenchmen arose at dawn this morning and went to Love Field where Coste superintended the refueling and inspection of the big red sesquiplane Question Mark. He and Bellonte hovered close around the machine which brought them over the Atlantic ocean from Paris, watching every minute detail of its refueling and adjustment for today's long flight.

Both felt much better this morning than they did last night after a 1200 mile non-stop flight and a half a night of being feted by hundreds of Dallas people. It was the first rest they had had, Coste said, since they landed in New York Tuesday. "Our flight to Dallas was perfect," Capt. Coste said. "Not once did we get off our route, and weather conditions were excellent." The flight was accomplished in 11 hours and 31 minutes. The total elapsed time between Paris and Dallas was 48 hours and 55 minutes.

They have not yet collected the $25,000 which Col. William A. Easterwood, Dallas sportsman, offered them for completing a flight from Paris to Dallas. But they were not uneasy over the fact.

"Ah, we are not worried about that," M. Racover, Coste's agent, said last night. "Colonel Easterwood is a gentleman, and what more should we want? As for myself, I have never seen the contract which calls for the prize if the flight should be successful, but I am not worried at all."

Will Present Check

"We didn't make the flight for the money, but for the sport."

From Col. Easterwood himself, now in London, came word that arrangements were being made to place the prize money in the fliers' hands. Col. Easterwood talked with friends in Dallas over the trans-Atlantic telephone last night.

"I am going to fly from London to Paris immediately," he said, "to confer with the French Air Minister on the details of the presentation of the check. The presentation will be made by me in either London, Paris or Dallas. These fliers have accomplished a glorious achievement and have earned the best reception which Dallas and the American people can give them."

Coste and Bellonte were accorded the most enthusiastic welcome ever given any person by this city when their big red plane swooped down on Love Field at 5:26 p. m. yesterday from New York. Spectators lined the field and streets for many blocks around the airport were blocked with automobiles.

"No reports available from other part of republic. Gov. Roosevelt sending medical personnel under command of Dr. Pernos, assistant health commissioner of Porto Rico, and chairman of Red Cross chapter; also food, tentage and cots, but not enough to supply demand."

STAR LORE THE HEAVENS THROUGH A TELESCOPE

Most every boy and girl of school age is curious to gaze at celestial objects through a telescope. A telescope does perform a work comparable to magic. It brings out the crescent of Venus; the belts of Jupiter; the rings of Saturn; the moons associated with various planets; the markings on Mars; mountains and craters on the moon; the structure of comets; the stars that produce the Milky Way; the Ring Nebula in constellation Lyra; spots on the sun; many double and triple stars; wonderful globular star clusters. The beginner in astronomy should remember that for general star gazing and mastery of foundation principles no telescope is essential.

WINSTON'S DEATH INVESTIGATED BY CORONER'S JURY

coming down the viaduct incline. When he got to the curve the car ahead suddenly stopped, then pulled out toward the center of the road. Dr. Duff found that the reason the car had stopped was because there was a car parked on the concrete and men were fixing a tire. He said that his headlights showed the car distinctly and that all four wheels were on the concrete. The right hand wheel, which was being repaired, was several inches on the concrete. The doctor said the car was parked on the outer rim of a curve and headlights of a machine approaching from the rear did not show it until the driver was close up, on account of the curve. He was uncertain as to whether or not a rear light was burning.

Mora Testifies.

Walter Mora, driver of the car which hit the Winston car, testified that he had been to a dance and was returning home with several others in the car. He was driving about 25 or 30 miles per hour. On account of the curve he did not see the car parked until he was about 25 feet away. He turned his machine quickly, but was unable to avoid hitting the car. He did not notice whether or not the rear light on the parked car was burning. Raymond Fontano, Dominick Ross and Nick Fidell, youths about 17 years of age, all testified that they were returning from Wampum to their homes when they came to the parked car. The driver offered them 50 cents to change the tire, but they not want the job. They stopped for a few minutes. All three were positive that all four wheels of the parked car were on the concrete.

Other Testimony.

Joe Gilliard, returning from work, saw the parked car and was of the opinion that all wheels were on the concrete.

J. L. Cole, bus driver, said that he was coming down the incline and that there was a car about 100 feet ahead of him. Suddenly the car ahead swerved to the left. Cole could not see the car parked until he came to nearly the spot where the other car had swerved. He said that the wheels of the parked car were all on the concrete.

Merle Guy and Ray Douthett, who passed the parked car, were both of the opinion that all four wheels were on the concrete.

Mora has been charged with involuntary manslaughter before Alderman Mantz by Mrs. Winston, widow of Jefferson Winston. He is on bail pending a hearing on this charge.

Return Trip, Non-Stop.
Miss Hurst's Marmoset.

Wheat Cheaper Than Corn.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1930, King Features Syn. Inc.)

Fourteen times in the history of the world human beings have flown westward across the North Atlantic Ocean. Eric Nelson and Lowell Smith were the first, and now come the brave French airmen, Dieudonne "God-Given" Coste and Maurice Bellonte.

Their is the first non-stop westward trip ever made.

Lindbergh's eastward flight alone with little announcement in advance, and the simple statement: "I am Charles Lindbergh," on arrival, will remain the most magnificent flight of all time.

Next, perhaps, will come the round trip.

Capt. Hawks, now at the head of American fliers, having flown across the American continent in 12½ hours, almost as far as Lindbergh and Coste and Bellonte flew in more than 30 hours, would be the man for the "New York to Paris and back again flight, with no stop between cities."

When he flies, he really flies. Two hundred and fifty miles an hour is his idea of a reasonable gait.

At that rate he could make the trip to Paris in about 16 hours, and back, allowing for head winds, in about 18 hours.

And even those figures in years to come will seem comically "old fashioned."

The literary and intelligent Fannie Hurst returns from Europe with a pet marmoset, so small it sits in a large pocketbook. She should write about husbands of the future, who will probably dwindle to about that size, in the course of evolution.

The giant sea crab, when you catch one, is always a female, of great size. She carries the male crab, about as big as a 10-cent piece, under one of her flippers, except on rare occasions. Human husbands may dwindle down to that, when men have no harder work to do than pushing a button. Size and muscle will no longer count.

But woman will remain of full size, because of her maternal duties, and for other reasons. The female spider is 10 times as big as her husband, and eats him after marriage. Human husbands should not complain.

The interesting charge is made that representatives of the Nye Senate committee, investigating Mrs. McCormick's campaign expenses, gave good government money to bribe a detective hired by Mrs. McCormick. This does not seem to be playing the game fairly. Each side should respect the other's detectives.

Also Mrs. McCormick's head detective says a lady was "planted in the closet of Mrs. McCormick's Drake Hotel apartment to listen and report. Some Republicans of importance tell you privately Mrs. McCormick, even if elected, will never enter the Senate." Illinois will want to know about that.

The unbelievable happens. You will read this morning that wheat for September delivery sells in Chicago at 82½ cents a bushel, and September corn at 97 3-8 cents.

No Board of Trade speculator, no hard-working farmer expected to see corn selling for 12 cents a bushel more than wheat.

ALL THE OLD ASK

They do not ask us oft to share our money.

The old see little now they care to buy.

'Tis much the same to them, gray skies or sunny.

A sample fare and dress will satisfy.

It's time and thought they sigh for. Stop to see them.

An hour with you from loneliness will free them.

They do not ask for much. They're done with pleasure.

Youth has few joys they longer wish to share.

The old have learned the emptiness of treasure.

And found that loneliness is hard to bear.

They like to be remembered and be thought of.

The little time you give them much is wrought of.

The old grandmothers and the gray grandfathers.

Know well that youth is busy with its care.

But this I'm sure must be the thought that bothers:

Can it be true youth has no time to spare?

Stop in to see them. A few minutes only.

Will drive away the pain of being lonely.

WHAT'S AHEAD FOR THE BUTCHER?
A revolution in the meat-packing and retailing industries is envisioned by J. G. Donley in the Chain Store Review. He writes:

Modern meat-packing plants may save everything but the squeal of the pig; but it remains true that the loss through shrinkage while the carcass is in their hands is more than equal to their net profits. This shrinkage loss will be almost entirely eliminated when meat is cut, ready for retailing in the packing plant and immediately quick-frozen.

A large part of the cost of retailing meats consists of wages of experienced meat cutters who actually cut meat during only a small part of the time they are on duty. Added to this overhead, is the cost of maintaining and stocking a large refrigeration room and all the paraphernalia of a butcher shop.

No other food product is so largely "processed" at the point of retail distribution as is meat.

The above are the simple facts that reveal the revolutionary possibilities for the meat-packing industry and for the food retailer in the substitution of the new-day, ready-cut and quick frozen meats for the prevailing method under which retailers maintain a standing army of butchers ready to cut meats to order.

No wonder those who have been studying the new economy of quick-frozen meats declare that the retailer's profits will be surer and more satisfactory, while the cost to the consumer will be considerably less!

Lon Chaney Leaves Impress On Permanent Art Of Films

Character Actor Credited With Modesty, Capacity For Work And Ability To Interest Public In Types Which Have No Romantic Appeal

Lon Chaney's ability to present roles which had no appeal except as fine examples of the art of the screen is praised by the country as death cuts short a career which gave promise of a growing following among the theatergoing public. His modesty is a subject for comment, while a combination of artistic conception and capacity for hard work is declared to have given him a permanent place in the history of the screen.

"As a character actor he was without an equal in moviedom," says the LYNCHBURG ADVANCE, "and his fame as an artist will outlive the glory of other stars whose appeal to the public was surrounded by a more pleasant atmosphere." The ROCK ISLAND ARGUS calls him "the king of mystery," declaring that "in this field he had no peer, and adding: 'He craved out a place for himself that it will be almost impossible to fill. He was unique and, in his own domain, supreme.' The ANNISTON STAR describes him as 'past master in dramatic art and premier villain of the screen.'

"It may offend the old school of critics, who find no good in the modern movies and talkies," states the LITTLE ROCK ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT, "to refer to him as the Mansfield of the films, but we can think of no more apt comparison. While 'the man of a thousand faces' may not have been as versatile as the star who could appear as Monsieur Beaucaire in the afternoon and Ivan the Terrible in the evening, he entered into the spirit of his art with the same passionate sincerity, the same devotion which lifted Mansfield above the plane of the ordinary."

"This actor," declares the WHEELING INTELLIGENCER, "was something more than an adventurer into the realm of the horrible and the bizarre. He made one feel he created a high degree of compelling interest. He commanded a sympathy, even in his make-belief villainies. He was conceded to be the greatest master of make-up that the drama has known. He would unconsciously shock even his fellow players. He was chosen to write the chapter on make-up for the Encyclopedia Britannica. He might well also have written the chapter on acting. None of his contemporaries could surpass his depth or fineness of expression. None could equal his versatility."

Pointing out that he was "wholly self-educated, was a great reader, and a student of many subjects," the MANCHESTER UNION thinks he was "too much of a man of mystery to lend himself easily to comment enough still of a man, and so much of an artist, that his passing will be very distinctly mourned."

"His work was his life, and his death," remarks the ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH, commenting also on his characteristics: "He liked far-off places and made pictures about Mandalay and west of Zanzibar and Mr. Wu. He was fascinated by the distorted souls of the underworld who work while the city sleeps. Railroad men were thrilled by his old engineer in 'Thunder' Marines found his hard-boiled sergeant life itself. It was while riding in a locomotive cab with windows open in a snow storm that he contracted the illness which resulted in pneumonia, meningitis and the little blood transfusions."

"In most of his roles," says the NEW ORLEANS TRIBUNE, "he devoted great talent to revealing the pathos, suffering, and the surviving virtues of distorted characters. When Chaney had done his best with the aid of a competent author, the spectator got something of the mysterious springs of emotion in complex lives."

The ST. LOUIS PIONEER PRESS recalls that "he managed to get 'inside' whatever part he happened to be playing, and, with consummate skill conveyed its particular rhythm and value." "A conscientious craftsman, he knew at every moment what he was about and he was seldom guilty of a false step or a jarring note."

"At a moment when the screen was devoted to immobile handsomeness and marble virtues," avers the BALTIMORE SUN, "Chaney caught the public fancy by introducing a certain note of acrobatic ugliness and grotesquerie. He was a relief from placid and painfully good heroes, and the audiences came to believe there was nothing he could not do in the way of distortion of limb and muscle." The Sun believes that "he was a figure who so much engaged the public taste and imagination that, in all likelihood, he definitely left his mark upon them."

"He filled a good purpose in the cinema," as viewed by the CHATTANOOGA NEWS. "He taught the people that happy endings were not necessary to true art. He taught them that tragedy may stimulate more powerfully than milk and water comedy. He taught them things about sympathy and human love." "As the hunchback of Notre Dame and as the grim Phantom of the Opera, Chaney perhaps impressed himself upon the minds of the masses of the people of the world as did no other actor of his time."

"At all events," concludes the HARRISBURG TELEGRAPH, "the screen has lost one of its most popular actors and there is none to take his place. He relied upon his own ingenuity and originality for the effects he produced with such striking success, rather than either charm or personality or any of the polite mannerisms of the matinee idol type of movie hero, with whom he had little in common."

"In the land of flickering shadows, Lon Chaney stood alone; his successor will not soon be found" in the judgement of the NEWARK EVENING NEWS, which also comments: "A queer fellow, Chaney. He shunned publicity even when he had arrived at fame. After his work at the studio, he would go home and read. He married his dancing partner of the struggling days, and at the end she was by his side, as always." The OMAHA WORLD-HERALD adds that "his private life was his own; it was reserved, decent; the kind of a life that a man who is intelligent, with many interests, likes to lead."

"A man who could spend many years in Hollywood and maintain throughout a scorn for a part of its movie colony is certainly deserving of a place along screen immortals, if such personages really exist," avers the MORGANTOWN DOMINION-NEWS, and the INDIANAPOLIS STAR declares: "In spite of his dislike for publicity, Chaney was by no means a hermit. Athletic himself, he was fond of prize fighting, football and fishing, and invariably attended ring battles or gridiron contests."

The ALBANY EVENING NEWS offers the appraisal: "He was one of the greatest interpreters of character that the films have known. He might have done greater work, for he was only 47 and had only recently completed his first talking picture." The LANCASTER INTELLIGENCER JOURNAL finds an explanation for his success in the fact that "he brought something different to the pictures" and that "he was not too 'lazy' to work."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

CROSS-BREEDING

"And how much would you say this colt was worth?" asked the railroad claim agent of the farmer.

"Not a cent less than $500," emphatically declared that sturdy son of the soil.

"Pedigreed stock, I suppose?"

"Well, no," the bereaved admitted reluctantly. "But your new yard judge a colt like that by its parents."

"No," the attorney agreed dryly. "I've often noticed how crossing it with a locomotive will improve a breed."

PASSING THE BUCK
It has been your habit for long to avoid things that require concentration or hard study.

You are only willing to perform those duties which are easy for you. In recreation you favor those amusements taking the least mental effort.

But in physical effort you are not so sparing of yourself.

You rather like a splash and dash around making more or less of a sensation and stirring things up generally.

You pay little heed to results due to your thrashing around.

You like to be the wind that blows. It is not directed breezes that you create but lots of trouble for yourself and your friends through your whirlwind attempts to have a good time.

You have a job and you need to keep that job.

Do you focus your attention upon its fine points while you work?

Do you study out how to make your work better and better each day?

No, for all your effort is to throw away responsibility.

You have been told many times that you should grow more and more in earnest in your work and have a definite object to study and advance. But nothing penetrates your brain—you are plain dumb not to realize opportunities you cast aside because you won't work hard enough.

Crime Never Pays

TEN MILLION WORKING WOMEN

THE Director of the Census estimates that we now have ten million women in this country who are engaged in "gainful occupations."

Half of them are employed in manufacturing goods in one form or another, and the remainder are performing service occupations. He gives the number of women engaged in housekeeping as 23,000,000, with most of them doing the major part of the work in their own homes.

In other words, the grand army of housewives—and daughters—is one of the most powerful in the country. Those who are lamenting about the decline of the home will find some food for thought in these figures. "Women," says Director Steuart, "are now engaged more actively in industry, trade and office work than ever before in the history of this country."

There is a reason for this, although it was not mentioned by the head of the Census Bureau in his address. It is war. During every great armed conflict women are called upon to perform work ordinarily done by men. They take the places of men in offices and in mills and factories. This occurred during the Civil War and it happened on a much larger scale during the World War. After peace had been declared a very large proportion of these women who had been acting as substitutes for the men continued to hold their jobs. Many of them still fill the places of the men who had been killed or who died during the war.

This competition between the sexes in the matter of employment has brought about unusual conditions in this day and generation. It has helped to increase the number of apartments which take the place of separate houses as homes. It has also contributed largely to our present unemployment of men problem also. In many cases both husband and wife go out to work in the morning.

The Director of the Census also estimates that the total population of 122,000,000 "is mainly supported, so far as breadwinning is concerned," by about 47,000,000 persons working about three-fourths of the time. In other words, less than one-half of the population provide the financial support of themselves and the others.

Here we have the material for endless discussion.

ANSWERING THE CALL

Alexander Sprunt, Jr., nationally known writer and authority on wild life, writing in "Woods and Waters" of the Charleston, (S. C.) News, says in part:

Some time ago the appeal went forth from the American Game Protective Association to motorists all over the United States to be more considerate of wild life on the highways. This appeal has not been in vain. An illustration of it was shown by a Charlestonian recently in picking up, resuscitating and ultimately releasing of a wounded woodcock on the road near the city. This gentleman had the spirit of conservation in him and did whatever it was possible for him to do. A strong contrast to those who might have seen the bird and wondered whether they could hit it with the right or left wheel, and immediately do one or the other.

Night time is the most fatal hour for accidents to wild life on the road. The blinding headlights confuse birds and animals. They know not which way to turn and as a result frequently squat in the middle of the road where they are easy marks for the careless, or thoughtless driver. This is the time when consideration is asked. Slow up and drive around the unfortunate subject. You will have done it a favor and had satisfaction in knowing that a good deed has been accomplished.

Forty million Americans spent last summer's vacations in the "great open spaces." Even more are doing the same thing this year. National parks and other centers of scenic interest are crowded to capacity. Think of the huge saving of wild life which would result if even a few of these millions would practice the golden rule of conservation. A rabbit here and there, a bird every now and then, doesn't seem to amount to much, but suppose forty million people each killed a single rabbit or a single bird, it would make a big hole in the animal and bird population of this country.

THE CASH AND CARRY TOWN

"No Trust; Cash Only."

That is a notice one sees often in the smaller stores and restaurants. But in Bloomfield, Nebraska, one sees it everywhere. It has become the city motto.

That Nebraska town has entirely eliminated the concept of credit from its business life.

The only thing which may be purchased without spot cash is an automobile. All other purchases, from eggs to gasoline, must be paid for on delivery. The wealthiest man in town can't buy a can of beans without plunking down the wherewithal.

Not only have grocers and haberdashers gone in for cash only, but doctors, lawyers and dentists have joined the "Cash Association."

Bloomfield may be a very wise town. The "cash only" system appeals, sometime or other, to most of us. It is a clean, clipped way of doing things, with every business wound up every night.

But Bloomfield may be biting off more than Bloomfield can chew. Credit is the lifeblood of modern business, disguise that fact as you will. It is the one thing which has made large-scale business possible. It is civilized—only savages would rather have a single bear steak than a promissory note for a whole herd of dinosaurs.

The very banknotes which Bloomfield passes about represent one form of credit. The fact that Bloomfield had to exempt automobiles shows how strongly the credit system has become ingrained.

Preparing To Install Large Clock In Tower At Christian Church

Expect Clock To Be In Place On Public Square Edifice In October

Church Interior Also To Be Entirely Redecorated
At Once

Sometime in the early part of October it is expected that the new clock will have been installed in the tower of the First Christian church. The H. L. Marvin company is at present busy installing the necessary wiring and the clock itself is to be shipped in the immediate future.

The new clock will be the finest thing of its kind. While there are larger clocks in existence there are none finer for this will represent the ultimate in the clock makers art. It is the gift of Mrs. Grace Phillips Johnson to her church and her city and once installed, the tower clock will be an accurate time keeper for this section of the city, and a thing of beauty that will add to the Public Square.

Three Other Clocks

With the installation of the tower clock, which will have four faces, will be three other clocks in the rooms of the church, and the master clock which will be in the hallway. This master clock is the controlling mechanism of the entire installation. This master clock automatically closes a contact once each minute for the duration of only two seconds. During these two seconds, current passes through the wires to each clock in the system and advances each clock one minute. Thus each clock is actually operating two minutes per hour and only forty eight minutes per day, causing little wear.

The master clock automatically winds up fully every thirty hours, and is weight driven. Should the current be interrupted it will run and keep accurate time, eight days without current. It is equipped with a mercurial compensating pendulum and guaranteed to rate within ten seconds per month of correct time.

The four tower clock dials cannot get out of step with each other as they are securely fastened together with a crown gear. Should the current supply be interrupted, the master clock continues to run and keep accurate time without current. The tower clock and secondary clocks stop. But immediately current is restored the self regulating feature causes the tower clock dials and secondary clocks to advance at the rate of a minute every two seconds until they have regained the time they lost during the interruption. Each and every clock is automatically checked each hour and if any is fast or slow it is automatically reset to the correct time each hour.

Beauty and Service

Thus to the beauty of this clock installation is added service that will be as nearly correct with Arlington time as it is possible to keep a piece of mechanism. Standing high in the tower of the church as it will, this clock will be a timekeeper for a wide radius of the business district. It is a gift that will be appreciated not alone by the First Christian church but by the citizens of New Castle.

In addition the clock installation, contracts have been let for the redecoration of the church auditorium and some improvements there. The entire auditorium will be re-decorated.

by the Andrews Company of Clinton, Iowa. This is the same firm that decorated the Mercer County court house and was recently called back to re-decorate it. Work on the decoration of the church auditorium will start Monday.

The pulpit is to be rebuilt, new panels are to be installed in the doors and on the stairways, this work to be done by the Citizens Lumber Company. The auditorium floor is to be covered with new carpet, this to be done by the Frew Company. New lighting fixtures are also to be installed, and four Gothic lanterns to mark the entrances to the church.

During the progress of the decoration of the auditorium, the church services will be held in the junior room. There will be no night service during September, according to Rev. G. S. Bennett, pastor.

Health Officer To Enroll In Course

County Officer George Montgomery To Get Instructions
At Carlisle

George E. Montgomery, Lawrence county health officer, reports Monday for duty at the Army Field Medical Service school at Carlisle, Pa., to begin a month's course of instruction in rural communicable disease control. The course is given annually by the United States army officers at Carlisle barracks, under the direction of Majors Dunham and Souder.

The training is the same as given the United States health authorities, and county health officers connected with the state department of health receive a schooling in their duties by arrangements with the United States army authorities. Dr. J. Moore Campbell, chief of communicable diseases at Harrisburg has general supervision of all county health officers participating in this course of instruction.

During Mr. Montgomery's absence, Miss Grace Ackerman and Miss Bertha U. Smith, local state nurses, will attend to the duties of health officer here.

Bill For Paving Given Approval

Upon receipt of estimate No. 3 from the state highway department, city council today approved a bill for $17,759.92 due Woods & Golder as part payment for the paving of Croton avenue, Grant street and Butler avenue.

GARDNER

Next Sunday evening, Dr. Shoemaker will bring with him to the service at Gardner chapel a quartet from St. Luke's A. M. E. church in New Castle. This will be a treat for all to hear these spiritual singers.

The chief danger in offering $10 for a used car now is that the dealer won't have anything but small change.

TODAY

To the Board of Trade gentlemen it simply means that wheat is cheaper than corn. To the farmer it means that corn, which yields to the acre twice as many bushels as wheat, sells for more than wheat.

V. H. Polachek, thoughtful and wise, who gets rich while others sleep, says farmers will feed wheat instead of corn to cattle now, since it is a cheaper and better feed. Therefore, corn prices will come down and wheat will go up. He is buying wheat.

The cautious will remember that corn might come down and wheat stay down.

Who can prophecy on supply and demand? Corn has sold as low as 10 cents a bushel, and farmers have used it for fuel in place of coal.

Now it is 12 cents a bushel dearer than wheat. And poor old Uncle Sam early in the year bought nearly 70,000,000 bushels of wheat way above $1 a bushel.

The Irish author George Russell, better known as "A. E.", an able economist as well as a poet, will soon make a lecture tour in the United States. The intelligent will want to hear him.

On the eve of his departure friends handed him $4,000, with eloquent speeches of praise including one by the distinguished Jesuit economist, Father Finlay.

Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, daughter of the late E. H. Harriman, has arranged and underwritten Mr. Russell's tour in America, rendering a public service.

German statisticians apply grim and correct figures about the great war. It has taken years to prepare them. 10,000,000 soldiers were killed, 30,000 unknown French soldiers lie in one grave.

The horses killed numbered 9,886,000—they certainly didn't start the war.

Eighteen million human beings were wounded, and two hundred and forty-seven billions of dollars were spent, wasted.

And that is what the world is paying for now in its slump, undoubtedly.

Eighteen so-called "terrorists", all Jugo-Slavian, are on trial at Trieste, and one confesses a plot to murder Mussolini.

Italy doesn't pamper prisoners. Each defendant is kept in a steel cage, taken out only for examination.

Assassination threats are among the things that interest Mussolini very little.

He firmly believes that he has a definite work to do, and that something somewhere preserves him until it is done.

YOUNG WOMAN UNDER ARREST

Charge Of Embezzlement Is Made By Employer At Youngstown

On a warrant from the Youngstown municipal court, charging embezzlement Mae Jenkins, 31, of this city, was taken into custody by New Castle officers on Thursday evening.

The warrant, sworn out Wednesday by Edward W. Dickson of the Schlitz Brewing company, Youngstown, where Miss Jenkins was employed as cashier and bookkeeper charged her with fraudulently embezzling and converting to her own use $1,600 of the firm's funds.

A communication from Chief of Detectives T. W. Thomas, of Youngstown, requesting the arrest of the New Castle woman, accompanied the warrant.

She waived extradition and at noon today was returned to Youngstown by Detective Louis Veneroso and Matron Fannie Vaughn of the Youngstown police force.

Miss Jenkins was arrested Thursday in the Boyles avenue home of a friend by Policewoman McKibbin and Officers Moore and M. J. Young. She was lodged in the matron's department at police headquarters to await the arrival of Youngstown officers.

According to Lieutenant Peter Hillers, Miss Jenkins, when questioned following her arrest said she had been playing the stock market. A woman employed in the office of a Youngstown broker had befriended her, according to her statement to police.

Forty Pomona Grange Members Visit Remains Of Old Economite Village

A neglected cemetery. A grave stone. An old church. That is all there is left of the Economite settlement that at one time thrived near Harmony. Not much, true, but each bit tells a mute story of a strange sect that lived, struggled, died and were then forgotten.

Forty members of Pomona grange journeyed to the village of Harmony, Thursday evening, and visited some of the places that at one time were in the heart of the German Economite settlement. In so doing the grange members bridged a vast gap of a hundred years. The visit to the evidences of the existence of the extinct society was an all too brief one.

Surrounded by a beautiful stone wall is the old Economite cemetery and wistful pine trees guard over the graves.

It was brought out during the tour of the Pomona grangers that the Economites, with their founder, came to America from Germany in 1804. Father Rapp selected the vicinity of Harmony as a suitable place to settle. About 300 more members of the strange society followed Father Rapp to America the next year.

They worked hard. They were economic. And as a result they became quite wealthy, and had in their control, 9000 acres of land, so the story goes. After 10 years at Harmony, the ground was sold to Abram Ziegler for the sum of $100,000, and the Economites moved to Indiana, where they settled along the Wabash river. Later they sold out there and made their homes in Economy, along the Ohio river. The wealth of the few remaining members of the society went to a man by the name of Diess, who had joined the society. As the members did not believe in marriage, they eventually became extinct, and forgotten by the onrushing world.

The Pomona grange members during Thursday evening's tour journeyed up a hill near Harmony and there saw a chair that had been hewed out of stone and used by Father Rapp to overlook the valley while his people were at work.

They were especially interested in the huge gate of stone that opens into the Economite cemetery. This gate is about 7 feet high and 8 feet wide and is an astounding and remarkable bit of masonry. It was built of solid rock and is hung on a pivot in the middle.

A large, deep wine cellar was another place of interest to the members of the party. The cellar is beneath a Harmony store that used to be used as a hotel. The party found it to be no ordinary cellar, it resembled a cave more than a cellar, as it is covered with stone and keeps a low temperature. It makes an excellent storage place.

The party visited the Mennonite church near Harmony and looked over the old cemetery there. They found many graves that are over 100 years old. They also visited the New Reformed church in Harmony. This church has just been remodeled at a cost of $75,000 and is a wonderful and remarkable church. It has been built and remodeled a number of times, and is located in the heart of the village.

When the tour was completed, the forty grange members had supper and then attended the regular meeting of Jackson grange, in Harmony.

It was an evening of interest for the grange members that has probably never been surpassed.

Audit Is Still Dispute Center In Merger Suit

Reach Closing Session Of Another Week In Youngstown Sheet & Tube Merger Suit

(International News Service)
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 5.—Trial of the injunction suit against the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube company with Bethlehem Steel corporation went into the closing session of another week today with the audit used in fixing the merger terms still the center of dispute.

George O. May, senior partner in Price, Waterhouse & Company, the auditing concern which prepared the basic figures of the merger negotiations, was recalled to the witness stand for a continuance of cross-examination by attorneys opposing the consolidation.

May's testimony has been interrupted twice—once a week ago to permit W. G. Mather, associate of Cyrus S. Eaton, anti-merger chieftain, to take the stand as a "special court's witness," and again yesterday to allow S. Livingston Mather, Cleveland capitalist, and Harris Creech, president of the Cleveland Trust company, to testify under the questioning of Judge David G. Jenkins.

S. Livingston Mather testified yesterday that his part in the battle over the merger was small and that he had attempted to remain neutral in the effort to merge the two steel companies. He said that he felt a merger between Inland Steel company of Chicago, and Sheet & Tube would have been more favorable to the latter concern, but that he had voted his personal holdings of nearly 6,000 shares of Sheet & Tube in favor of the merger because the stock had been given him by his father, Samuel Mather, reputedly Ohio's wealthiest citizen, who favored the combine with Bethlehem.

Young Negroes Taken To New Castle Police Station To Await Word From Car Owner

Herbert Brown, young negro who claims to be the chauffeur for a New York shirt salesman, was arrested with four other negroes and three negroes on the Youngstown road, near Bradford field Thursday evening while riding in a sedan to New Castle, by Corp. Fulton of the State Police.

Brown said the machine is owned by his employer, Robert Johnson, who is supposed to be staying at the Tod House, Youngstown. The state policeman brought the five negroes to city police station and permitted their female acquaintances to leave. Many Entries For Flower Show

Expect Exhibition Next Week To Be Greatest Show Of Years

Considerable interest is being manifested in the tenth annual flower show of the Lawrence County Garden Club which will be held in the Carnegie Auditorium on September 10 and 11. Entries are pouring in, space is being reserved and the indications point to a show bigger and better than the ones previously held.

The blooms to be exhibited should be in the auditorium on the night before the show opens. They will be put in water and the entrants can care for them the next morning. This will eliminate much unnecessary confusion on the morning of the show and will aid the members of the Garden Club who are already busy with other duties.

The winners of the posters for the show can get their posters in the auditorium during the progress of the show. All other contestants can get their posters from Mrs. W. C. Kennedy of 465 Neshannock avenue.

By some misunderstanding, the dates shown on the posters are September 11 and 12. This is wrong as the dates are September 10 and 11. It is hoped that the error in the date will be remembered by those seeing them, and that no one will be confused as to the proper dates.

Report On Work In Summer Camps

Executive Committee Of Lawrence County Sabbath School Association Meets

PLAN PROGRAM FOR COMING FALL

The opening fall meeting of the executive committee of the Lawrence County Sabbath School Association was held at the parlor of the Y. W. C. A. Thursday evening with the president, Robt. M. Strickler, Jr., presiding, and the following members present: P. W. Griffin, vice president; Mrs. Wm. J. Marshall, secretary; Rev. Ross M. Haverfield, religious education superintendent; Homer C. Drake, home department superintendent; Mrs. R. H. Nesbit, teacher training superintendent; Miss Anna Perry, administrative superintendent; Mrs. Margaret Speer Gibson, missions superintendent; A. W. Leslie, president of Mr. Jackson District; La Verne Bauder, president of Ellwood District; and Mrs. J. L. Stratton and Mrs. P. R. Weisz, additional members of the executive committee. Guests were Dr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Foster, Miss Alice Grimes and Miss Boyd.

After prayer by A. W. Leslie and the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Dr. Foster, who is superintendent of the First Presbyterian Sabbath School gave his impressions of the State Young People's Camp which he visited this summer. He stated that he was favorably impressed with the camp from the standpoint of location, teacher and leader personnel, activities and course of study offered, and then called upon the camp representative from the First Presbyterian Sabbath School, Alice Grimes, to give her report. Miss Grimes gave an excellent review of camp life and its constructive program, and she was given a vote of thanks for the insight into camp life that she brought. Dr. Foster suggested that it might be well to have a delegation of those interested visit the camp this fall which is located on this side of Altoona, so that more interest and enthusiasm might be stirred up for camp next year. Arrangements are being made to carry out this idea.

Miss Anna Perry, the newly elected administrative superintendent, gave a very interesting talk on the value of Bible instruction in the Sabbath School, especially memorizing verses. She dwelt upon the importance of having a child repeat the verse until it becomes a very part of his life, and gave pertinent illustrations to emphasize the value of this instruction.

Mrs. R. H. Nesbit, the newly-elected teacher training superintendent, gave a talk on this important phase of Sabbath School work and Mrs. Margaret Speer Gibson spoke concerning her department, missions, and in particular upon the successful conference held at the last county convention.

P. W. Griffin gave some interesting remarks concerning the plan of Bible instruction used in Mt. Jackson District, and Rev. Ross M. Haverfield, religious education superintendent, reviewed the work being done in various parts of the county in regard to providing Bible instruction in the schools. He was requested to prepare an article of this activity for the Pennsylvania Herald.

The secretary, Mrs. Marshall, gave a report of the last Sabbath School convention which was held at the Cathedral last June.

The meeting adjourned with a prayer by Mrs. Margaret Speer Gibson.

Cruelty Charge In Dog Killing Not Sustained

Jury Hears Evidence In Case Of Dog Which Was Caught Stealing Chickens

Jury trial of an unusual case in which Mike Pletchevic of Wampum was charged with cruelty in killing a dog, caught stealing chickens, was heard by Squire James Glover of Wampum last night. The prosecutor in the case was Ernest Barber, owner of the dog.

Barber had not been an eye witness of the death of his dog, but when he came to make the information before Squire Glover he stated that he had been told that Pletchevic had made the dog suffer unnecessarily while it was being killed. In fact, according to his information, the dog had suffered several hours.

After hearing several conflicting stories, Squire Glover decided to empanel a jury of six to hear the evidence. When the case came up last night Loyal Welsh, a brother-in-law

Rhodes Mission Enjoys Picnic Thursday Evening

Thursdays evening was a gala night for the members of the Rhodes Mission on the Harlansburg road, when the mission grounds were gaily lighted with vari-colored lights and over two hundred men, women and children enjoyed the annual corn and wiener roast.

Hundred of sandwiches, dozens of cakes made by the women of the mission and cup after cup of ice cream was eagerly eaten by the group there, which included the loyal workers of the mission and the members.

The mission was established eighteen years ago by a small group of workers and has grown to a Sunday School of over 200 members, being entirely interdenominational, and meets every Sunday at 3 p. m., with classes ranging from the primary age to adult, with a full corps of faithful teachers. George Ramsey is superintendent.

Following the "cats" Thursday evening a huge bonfire was the center of attraction and games of various sorts were indulged in until a late hour, when all returned to their down under a tree on the courthouse lawn here and make the court come to her.

Rose was jailed 80 days ago and at that time was only a slender girl of 380 pounds. The feeding at the jail was so good, though, that she put on 50 pounds more very rapidly. When the time came for her trial she had difficulty in getting through the jail doors, and more difficulty in walking the few blocks to the courthouse.

Under a spreading oak tree she balked and the court came outside to arrange her. She was released—gladly enough—on her own recognizance until the November term of court.

A. E. F. Window To Be Put In Paris Church

To Symbolize Story Of Franco-American Friendship

(International News Service)
BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Symbolizing the story of Franco-American friendship, centering on two major conflicts—the American Revolution and World war—a stained glass window, the window of Boston artists, will soon appear in the newly built American church in Paris. The edifice is now under construction under the supervision of Ralph Adams Cram, well known architect of this city.
The window, depicting the amity between the United States and France now being dismantled in the Back Bay studio of Charles J. Connick, will be shipped to France as a contribution to the fine arts. It will be known as the "A. E. F." window and relates in glass pictures the feature struggles down through the ages.
In explaining the "A. E. F." window, Connick said:
"The window is designed to represent in modern symbols an idea, as old as stained glass itself, related to the friendship of men and nations under the shadows of war. It is a story of the United States, is pictorialized, and, therefore, it is treated in broad, simple lines of design and pronounced masses of color.
"From left to right, the first lancet presents the American doughboy of 1918. His figure represents the American Expeditionary Force of 1918, and is balanced by the French soldier of Lafayette's Expeditionary Force of 1777. This idea is developed further by the American transport steamer in the first lancet, and by the ship, Victory, in the fourth lancet base.
"The two central figures are Washington and Lafayette, both represented by their arms.
"Underneath Washington is a group—July the Fourth, the national holiday of the United States, is pictorialized. Under Lafayette, the group is representative of the celebration of the fall of the Bastille, on the memorable 14th of July.
"The American shield is above the doughboy, while the French shield of Lafayette's day is above the French soldier.
"The background of the large figures is in crisp staccato lines on a red ground, suggesting the shadows and tumults of war. This same idea is followed in the tracery pieces, with savage animals, with national heroes, and with the archangels of war and peace, St. Michael and St. Gabriel. The American heroes are William Penn and Abraham Lincoln, while those of the French are St. Louis and St. Martin of Tours."
The dedication of the new American church scheduled for this fall will be attended by both Charles J. Connick and Ralph Adams Cram. The latter two have supervised most of the designing and art work of the church.

It is a vicious sickness because it is the result of careless eating and living. It is called constipation, and while it usually appears only occasionally at first, so often it is neglected that it becomes a chronic and serious disease.

Sharon Mourns For Late Rt. Rev. McAdam

Bishop Gannon Of Erie Diocese Will Head Erie Delegation For Funeral

(International News Service)
SHARON, Pa., Sept. 5.—Bishop John Gannon of Erie will head a delegation of more than 200 Catholic clergy of the Erie diocese in western Pennsylvania and eastern Ohio who will attend the funeral services for the Rt. Rev. Msgr. J. H. McAdam, pastor of Sacred Heart church for 29 years, who died yesterday following an extended illness, it was announced today.
Msgr. McAdam became ill a few days before a mass celebration was held in July in honor of his 50th anniversary as a priest. His death was directly due to this illness, doctors said.
The prelate was 79 years old at the time of his death. Two years ago he was raised to the rank of domestic prelate. He was born in Albany, N. Y., on May 13, 1854, and lived there until enrolling in St. Bonaventure college in 1869 when he was but 15 years of age.
He was graduated from St. Bonaventure college at Allegany, N. Y., in 1880 and was ordained on July 4 of that year.
At one time he was assigned to the parish at Bradford, Pa. He was given his first charge at Stoneboro and later served at Mercer before coming to Sharon.
Msgr. McAdam was highly interested in athletics of all kinds and was a personal friend of John J. McGraw, pilot of the New York Giants.
The body will rest at the church rectory until 3 p. m. Sunday when the remains will be taken to the church where they will lie in state until the funeral. A special solemn high mass for children will be held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Anti-Saloon League Changes Policy, Will Support Bone Drys

Militant Bone-Dry Candidacy Injected Into Illinois Senatorial Campaign

Henceforth Candidates To Be Supported Must Adopt
"No Deviation Platform"

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Injection of a militant, bone-dry candidacy into the hectic senatorial campaign in Illinois marks the beginning of a new political policy on the part of the much-harassed anti-saloon league. As a general policy, the league has heretofore been content to give its support to a nominal dry wherever and whenever opposed by an avowed wet candidate. But changing conditions have brought about a revision of its policy and henceforth, it was indicated today, the league is going to demand that the candidates who receive its support stand securely hunched to a bone-dry and no-deviation plank.

Support for Independent

In consequence, although Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick has pronounced herself dry, and her Democratic opponent J. Hamilton Lewis is avowedly wet, the League is going to support Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill as an independent candidate in November.

The League's support of Mrs. O'Neill is by way of punishment for Mrs. McCormick for deviating slightly from the staunch dry platform on which she won the Republican nomination. This deviation consisted of her announcement some weeks ago that if Illinois votes wet in the forthcoming November referendum (it has already twice voted wet in referenda) she will vote to submit the question of repeal to the people, notwithstanding her own personal dry convictions. Thus the absorbing Illinois senatorial fight, already the most spectacular in the country, becomes a three-ringed circus in which Illinois voters can express themselves in November for (1) a bone dry woman (2) a just ordinarily dry woman, or (3) a wringing wet man for the coveted senatorship.

Difficult Path

The effect of Mrs. O'Neill's candidacy on the McCormick-Lewis battle cannot, of course, be yet told. But in the opinion of many capital politicians it makes Mrs. McCormick's pathway to the Senate infinitely more difficult. The contest between Mrs. McCormick and ex-Senator Lewis already was considered close by many observers. With Mrs. O'Neill now certain to take some dry votes away from her, her position is considered even by some of her friends to be precarious.

There is considerable interest among political leaders here as to whether the new policy of the League is to be pursued in other states where conditions are analogous to those in Illinois, notably in Montana and Washington.

Two of the outstanding dries in the Senate, Senator Wesley L. Jones (R) of Washington, and Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D) of Montana, are up for re-election. Walsh already has a formidable wet opponent in Judge Albert J. Galen, a wringing wet, and Jones is expected to have the same sort of opposition.

Look For Candidate

Both made pronouncements similar to Mrs. McCormick's—that if their states voted wet by referendum they would "bow to the will of the people" and vote to submit the question of repeal to popular vote. Jones, in his efforts to placate the wets of his state went even further in his bid for wet support. He denied the fatherhood of the so-called "five and ten" law which bears his name, and which is the most drastic piece of prohibition legislation in the federal statutes.

If the League elects to pursue its Illinois policy in these states, logically an Independent, bone-dry candidacy will be introduced to punish Jones and Walsh for their apostasy.

In New Jersey, where both the Republican, Dwight Morrow, and the Democrat, Alexander Simpson, are wet, the League has been looking for a suitable bone-dry candidate ever since the primary last June.

There is considerable difference of opinion among the League leaders over the wisdom of injecting these independent candidacies into contests where one of the candidates is dryer than the other. Those who object do so on the ground that "half a dry is better than no-dry at all" but the present policy of the League is pointed to the other way.

Thwart Attempt To Rob Furniture Company At Midnight On Thursday

Police Quickly Surround Building And Find Robbers Have Been Frightened.

An attempt to enter the Haney Furniture Company, Hileman building, at midnight Thursday was thwarted by a pedestrian who disturbed the would be burglars and then sent an alarm to police.

Police quickly surrounded the building and made a thorough search by circling the building, and poking their flashlights in the alley ways in the district. They found the metal screen taken from a window which faces an alley on the west side of the building. Police believe that the robbers had planned an attempt to rifle the company's safe.

Man And Dog Enter Suicide Pact

(International News Service)
DENVER, Col., Sept. 5.—For years "Old Man Stokes," as he had become known along the river bottom in Denver, had lived in the fog of loneliness, his faithful mongrel dog, Sport, his sole companion.

One night recently, he decided both he and Sport were too old to take care of themselves and should "shove off."

In his cheap hotel bedroom, the aged man shot Sport to death and turned the rusty old pistol on his self. He pulled the trigger but the old weapon failed to work. By that time the proprietor of the hotel arrived and wrested the pistol from his grasp. Stokes was taken to the Denver General Hospital. There the old man died of a broken heart, crazed with grief for having killed his mongrel pet.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—Members of the Pittsburgh branch of the National Research Council of the science committee for the 1933 Chicago world's fair today announced the completion of a chronological record to be used in staging the historical chemical exhibit.

Starting with the beginning of a small scale petroleum refining plant here in 1855, the record includes the beginning of use of natural gas for melting glass in 1882; the beginning of electrolytic production of aluminum in New Kensington in 1888; the beginning of production of silicium ryby glass here in 1894, and the starting of commercial production of radium here in 1913.

These items are to be included in similar items from other cities, making the complete record for the exhibit.

Holbrook of the school of engineering and mining at the University of Pittsburgh; in the mining and metallurgical division; Dr. C. H. Lists Causes For Loss Of Licenses To Operate Autos

Reckless Or Intoxicated Drivers Stand Best Chances Of Losing Licenses

HARRISBURG, Sept. 5.—Records of Motor Vehicle Bureau inspectors charged with hearing evidence in the cases of automobile drivers threatened with loss of the driving privilege, show that the majority of these drivers are in trouble either because they drove while under the influence of liquor, or that they were reckless.

These records disclose no diminution in the number of slow-thinkers who imagine they can successfully impersonate an applicant for a learner's permit.

Last week in the twelve districts in which Pennsylvania has been divided for this purpose, 220 hearings were scheduled. These are not "fining mills." The penalty, if the person charged is found guilty, is far more severe than a mere fine. It involves withdrawal of the driving privilege for a period deemed proper by the examiners. Of the 228 cases scheduled, last week, 69 were for reckless driving, 62 for intoxication, 39 for impersonation, 11 incompetent, 4 habitual violator, 19 leading permit, 5 no license, 14 permitting violation of the Motor Code, 6 transporting liquor, 3 failure to render assistance, 1 manslaughter, 1 fraud, and 1 for operating during suspension period.

"As a result of these hearings," said Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon, "we are beginning to get what is popularly known as the 'low down' on automobile accidents. In other words, we are beginning to find out why crashes occur."

Says Soft Phone Voice Brings Success

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 5.—"The soft answer on the telephone is often the secret of business success," declared Sir Francis Goodenough, chairman of the government committee on "Education and Salesmanship" to the Drapers' Chamber of Commerce.

"An ill-mannered, impatient, hard-boiled operator," added Goodenough, "is an abomination who should not be tolerated in any business."

"But it is not sufficient that ordinarily good manners should be possessed by all who answer a customer on the telephone, either first or last. 'The voice that, to the customer, represents the whole firm and reflects its whole policy, ought to be agreeable to the ear, convey immediately the desire to serve, and sympathy with the customer's troubles, and make the customer realize that he or she is regarded as one of the first importance whose good opinion and custom the firm values highly."

"A soft answer turneth away wrath," should be printed on a card and hung on every telephone in a business house.

"The treatment of complaints is the acid test of salesmanship. Our trouble is, not that the British customer complains too often and without cause, but that he does not complain as often as those, whose guiding principle is service, would wish him to do."

Woodcock Will Make U. S. Tour

Director Of Prohibition To Make Inspection Of 12 Districts

WILL DEVOTE WEEK TO CINCINNATI AREA

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Col. Amos W. W. Woodcock, director of prohibition under the department of justice, will leave here tonight on a tour of inspection which will take him into each of the twelve administrative districts in which the country is divided for enforcement purposes.

Before his departure Woodcock issued orders, eliminating from a dry agents' text, a suggestion that boys be used to shadow suspects. The passage was included in a study prepared for the prohibition bureau's school for agents, now in its fourth day in the capital. The prohibition chief declared newspapers had given undue emphasis to the section involved.

This paragraph read: "Two boys can engage in games near the home of the subject without attracting much attention, whereas a man loitering in the neighborhood would soon arouse suspicion."

Never Intended Use of Boys
He said he had never had intended using boys in this manner, and that the passage had been inserted in the course of a general discussion of sleuthing, merely as an example of methods that had been employed.

Intending to devote all of next week to the Cincinnati district, Woodcock expects to reach there Saturday night. During the next week he will look over the organizations at Columbus and Cleveland.

He declared he will be available in each city he visits for complaints or suggestions, whether from prohibition officials or citizens. He wants to get a close up of the prohibition organization and familiarize himself with conditions in each district, he said.

Returning to Washington September 12 to appear before the budget commission, Woodcock will spend the week of September 15 in New England, and in Boston will make one speech before some women's organization. The week of the 22nd he will go to Pennsylvania, taking in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. He will return to Cincinnati for the week of September 29 and the next week he will go to New York City, with visits to Syracuse and Buffalo. Detroit, Grand Rapids and Kentucky and Tennessee cities will be covered on either of the Ohio trips, he said.

Tentative plans have been made to go to Chicago and Illinois points early in October, and then to California.

Shoe Reminds Dog Of Absent Master

(International News Service)
DENVER, Sept. 5.—A beautiful collie mourns the absence of his master out at Loretto Heights College and wanders disconsolately about his spacious grounds, carrying with him, wherever he goes an old, black shoe discarded by the vacationing owner. But the dog will have his day. The Right Rev. Monsignor Richard Brady, chaplain at Loretto since 1896, will return from a visit to Cottehill County Cavan, Ireland, some time in October, and the collie's moping mood probably again will spread wide in a happy doggy grin.

When the master, from whom the collie was inseparable, departed for Ireland, the dog was inconsolable. A box of old clothing for the poor was left outside for collection one morning. The dog sniffed a few times, then plunged into it with alacrity. Articles of apparel were strewn about recklessly as he nosed down to the bottom of the box. When he emerged in his mouth was a shoe, a comfortable old shoe the monsignor had reluctantly outworn.

Not even a bone can lure the collie from his keepsake. To this stalwart friend of man, memories transcend all else.

Paymaster Robbed Of $3,000 By Armed Pittsburgh Bandits

Crickshank Pickles Paymaster Robbed In Front Of Building By Two Men

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—Two armed bandits today held up and robbed a paymaster for the Crickshank Brothers pickle works on the North side here and made their escape with $3,000 in currency.

The paymaster, whose name was not divulged by officials of the company, was slugged and knocked to the ground when he attempted to resist.

Witnesses described the bandits as being youthful, unshaven and apparently hoboes.

The paymaster had drawn the payroll money from the First National Bank downtown and had just alighted from a taxicab in front of the plant when he was held up.

A police dragnet was spread throughout the city and descriptions of the bandits were telephoned to nearby boroughs.

Witnesses said the men made their escape in a small model automobile.

Plays Billiards High Up In Air

(International News Service)
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—Billiards in the air has proved to be a distinct success.

Charles C. Peterson of St. Louis, famous billiard player, demonstrated here recently that the game can be played in the clouds.

After four flights in a giant Curtiss-Wright Condor plane, the tests being recorded by still and movie camera men, Peterson made 100 points in 28½ seconds while flying at an altitude of 4,000 feet and a speed of 100 miles an hour.

Captain Frank Courtney, famous English war aviator, was at the controls of the plane. Peterson holds the world's record for speed of 100 points. His record is 26 seconds.

MANY SURPRISES TO BE SEEN IN NEW SLEEVES FOR FALL

By ALICE LANGEIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Many a smart woman will have something up her sleeve this winter, for the chic couturiers are slipping over a number of big surprises in the way of arm covering on their new winter gowns.

In every collection sleeves are receiving a great deal of attention. The widened sleeve top gives bulk to the shoulder and confirms the slim silhouette. The leg o' mutton sleeve our grandmothers loved has come back with grand éclat and there is a new puff variety which resembles a modified bell sleeve with the material tucked inward and the puff cut deeper and wider than usual.

Very short sleeves and sleeves to the elbow are either puffed or straight. Some fit on like long gloves and are sometimes attached to the dress, sometimes not. Philippe et Gaston stresses sleeves that encase the arm to the elbow and then flare outward. Fur cuffs are bell-shaped, mousquetaire, rectangular and rounded in from the elbow to wrist.

Suzanne Talbot favors the sleeve that just clears the elbow or one that reaches half way down the upper arm and another dressmaker is sponsoring mostly angel-wing sleeves with a wide flaring panel floating from the elbow.

Lucien Lelong shows many variations in sleeves, including the cap and tiny puff which is ever youthful. A most intriguing sort comes on many of his cocktail gowns, coming below the elbow and tying in a simple knot, variously decorated with circular flounces above the elbow and with little sleeve capes.

Patou puts short sleeves on most of his evening coats with trains. Three turned-up volants appear on the tight sleeves of a frock just above the elbow and all types of improvised sleeve fullness is shown in the different collections, many lines on the sleeve being marked merely by an overhanging section of material.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Editor, The Farm Journal
Written for Central Press

Those parts of this farm country that are well equipped with silos are apt to be the least handicapped by dry weather.

Many such sections came to the conclusion this summer that their corn crop would be below par, and thereupon they have cut their corn, chopped it up and put it into the old reliable silo for next winter's feeding.

The 1930 farmer, particularly the one with dairy cows, would feel lost without silage. And this is the more remarkable, since the silo has been known in the United States for something less than 50 years. Yet the storing of silage is one of the oldest of agricultural processes, and one of the simplest.

What is a silo? It is any kind of a tank or pit, airtight as nearly as possible, built so that moisture will drain out the bottom without letting air in. Of course there is a best form of silo, which is cylindrical narrow and deep.

Into this tank is put chopped corn or whatever crop is to be "ensiled," and as the mass settles with its own weight, more is put on top until the silo is nearly full. Then a covering of straw or chaff is usually put over the top, and the job is done.

Immediately natural processes begin their task. Fermentation starts in the chopped corn, and this continues until the oxygen in the air is used up, and replaced with carbon dioxide gas.

Fermentation can go no further, and in this condition, buried in a tankful of gas, the silage will keep indefinitely if air is kept out. The layer at the top is next the air, and for this reason there is always some spoilage, but not enough to be serious.

Silage as taken out for feeding is moist, soft, and has a distinctive odor, slightly acid but rather pleasant when you are accustomed to it.

Pit silos and trench silos, scooped out of the earth, are often used, particularly for temporary emergencies. Both are effective as far as preserving feed is concerned, but there is much more spoilage, and they have various other drawbacks. Neither is more than a makeshift, as compared with a silo of the standard type.

Look with friendly interest at the tall cylinders you see attached to the dairy barns. In them, sweet and fresh in a nice bath of carbon dioxide gas, are the makings for the rich milk and fragrant butter you will be eating next February.

Low Water Reveals Sunken Gunboat

(International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 5.—The low water which has prevailed in the Mississippi River because of the recent drought has revealed the historic hull of a Federal gunboat near here sunk during the Civil War days.

The gunboat, whose name has not been ascertained, is believed to have been sunk in 1862 during an ice jam with other gunboats and motor boats of the inland navy. The sunken vessel was abandoned after its machinery and most of its iron plates had been salvaged.

The gunboat, it is believed is one of a fleet of gunboats constructed under the direction of Captain Eads and launched in 1861 and 1862.

The real race, this being a year of races of many sorts, is between the filling stations and the baby golf courses, to see which can get to the corner lots first.—The Savannah Morning News.

Colonel Easterwood Wants To Give Coste Big Check Himself

Dallas Sportsman Who Offered $25,000 For Paris-Dallas Flight Ready To Pay

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 5.—"It was a marvelous flight which Coste and Belonte made from Paris to Dallas, and I am going to be the person who hands Coste his check for the flight," Col. William E. Easterwood, of Dallas, Tex., personally informed International News Service today.

The check is the $25,000 cash prize which Col. Easterwood posted some time ago for the first flight from Paris to Dallas, with one intermediate stop at New York.

"I will be the one to hand Coste the check, and no one else," Col. Easterwood reiterated. "I am flying to Paris tomorrow to find out from the French air ministry whether Coste is remaining in America long enough to enable me to reach New York, to present the check to him there, when I think would be most fitting. Otherwise I shall await Coste's return to Paris, and will present the check to him in Paris."

Delve Deeper In Murder Mystery

Man Sentenced To Life Imprisonment Changes Story Regarding Girl's Death

YOUNG GIRL SLAIN NEAR MEDINA, OHIO

(International News Service)
MEDINA, O., Sept. 5.—Sentenced to life imprisonment in the Ohio Penitentiary for the brutal murder of Dolly Kozlowski, 19-year-old girl-mother, William Evans, 26, today was being held in county jail here while detectives delved further into the mysterious murder case.

Dolly's bullet-riddled body was found in a corn field on the morning of August 1, last, by a passer-by. Evans was arrested the next day and, according to police, confessed to having killed the girl when she threatened to return home.

In court yesterday Evans changed his plea from first degree murder to a general charge of homicide and flatly denied firing the fatal shot. He admitted that he was the father of the girl's two-and-a-half-year-old baby.

On the stand Evans declared that another man had fired the shots which killed the girl. Sam Yakus and Joe and Dominick Carroli have been indicted as accomplices in the slaying. All three were alleged to have been with Evans the night he took Dolly to Wadsworth, near here. Neither Prosecutor Raymond Bennett nor Attorney Frank Rockwell, Evans' counsel, today would discuss the possibility that Evans would tell his new story to the grand jury.

"Guelph Treasure" Now On Exhibition

(International News Service)
FRANKFORT-ON-MAINE, Sept. 5.—For the first time in 40 years—and also for the last time—the renowned "Guelph treasure" is being publicly exhibited in the "Stadelches Institut" in Frankfort and after that, for a brief time in the Berlin Palace Museum.

The treasure includes wonderful examples of the goldsmith's art—reliquaries, monstrances, portable altars, etc. The oldest pieces date from the early years of the eleventh century. Up to the coming of the Reformation they were in regular use in churches.

The treasure of great intrinsic value in itself, also represents one of the most important epochs in German history. The whole collection has been sold abroad and will doubtless eventually be scattered all over the world.

Frenchman Sees Too Much Of Uncle Sam

(International News Service)
PARIS, Sept. 5.—"Always Uncle Sam," everywhere you go, you find him, as Victor Hugo said of Vesuvius in "Les Orientales."

This is the opinion of C. D. writing in "Candide" and objecting to the fact that Miss America always comes out first in the world beauty contests.

"Will Miss America be Miss Universe forever?" he asks. "This year the 17-year-old blonde who won the contest at Galveston saw beautiful Miss Rumania, Miss Russia and all the others lag behind her. It is a good thing Maurice de Waleffe has had the beauties go to South America for the next decision. There, at least, the universe will not be confused with the United States!"

Britain Fast Recovering Forests

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Britain is recovering the forests that were its glory in the Middle Ages.

All over the kingdom huge plantations contain many millions of growing saplings. The government is planning for the day when their electrically driven trains will race through vast avenues of dense trees. Municipalities envisage the day when every street will be tree-lined.

Most of all, the Forestry Commission has insured that dozens of great national forests shall come into being as soon as the trees can be brought to maturity.

The annual report of the Forestry Commission shows that: In ten years 130,768 acres have been planted, and another 310,230 acres have been secured. The Commissioners have 132 forests—65 in each in England and Scotland and 22 in Wales.

During the next ten years they aim at planting from 330,000 to 350,000 with a further 1,770,000 acres in the ensuing 80 years. This is not bad for a tiny country such as Britain. In 100 years time, England will be the Old England again full of colorful and rolling forests.

Cedar Street Man Is Former Champion Roque Player Of United States

When the "C" and the "T" were taken off the word "croquet" it was more than a verbal change. It was the beginning of the most scientific outdoor sport in existence—Roque.

The game has been played for over 30 years now and during that time its popularity has spread until now there are Roque clubs in almost all states of the Union. However, its popularity is not nearly as widespread as golf and tennis, because it is so thoroughly scientific that comparatively few of those who are interested ever take the time to learn it.

But right here in New Castle we have a man who is one of the most expert Roque players in the nation. Dr. C. W. Davis, of North Cedar street has won a number of tournament cups and was, several years ago, the recognized champion Roque player of the United States.

Dr. Davis has been interested in the game as a hobby for quite a number of years. He has played in tournaments in Florida and in many western states and as a result is an authority on the game. He has just returned from Cleveland, O., where he took part in a tournament at Wade Park.

Roque is played on an oblong, outdoor court. A cement curbstone is built around the court, about eight inches in height. The court is kept rolled and free of grass. Dr. Davis had one built over a year ago on North Cedar street, near his home.

discussion the matter was turned over to the fire committee for final action.

Troop F Horses Have Two Names It Develops

It is an old, old rule with cavalry units of the National Guard that horses must be named in such a manner that the first letter of the name will be the letter of the trooper's name. That, perhaps, is one of the reasons why so many of Troop F's horses have two names!

Lieut. Harvey G. Bintrim's horse "Mickey" is known on government records as "Flier"; Lieut. J. E. Reed's "Mickey" is really named "Flame"; Lieut. George F. Mitchell's "Pal" is "Foxy"; Sergt. Percy F. Knight's "Tomboy" is "Pan"; Earl Miller's "Skip" is "Pearl", etc.

"Chubby" now used exclusively for mounted pistol practice is known to the government as "Pat". It has been explained by troop officers that the custom of naming horses after the troop letter has been in vogue for many years. Despite that fact, guardsmen, who become acquainted with their mounts, invent appellations that in their opinions, fit their horses.

The government care of horses is systemized to a great extent. A record file of each horse in a cavalry unit is always kept up to date in a fashion that would win praise from an efficiency expert. The file gives the place and date of acquisition, the hoof brand, sex, color, age, weight, color and height.

Horses are measured by "hands". A "hand" is four inches in length. The government figures approximately $125 as the value of an average horse for military service. Such a horse must not be more than seven years of age, about 15 hands in height and must weigh not less than 800 pounds. In addition, a cavalry horse must be free from all physical defects.

Car Afire Chased By Firemen, But Driver Goes On

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Sept. 5.—N. M. Lancaster was driving a truck across town and in his wake and excitement he left two destroyed radios, Chris Trumbull with a lacerated forehead, and a collision between a motorist and a fire truck.

Unknown to him, the cargo on his truck was afire, and the fire engine was chasing him. They finally caught up with him, after he had driven all the way through town, and put out the blaze.

City Objects To Omission Of Name

(International News Service) HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—It was just a wee bit too much for the pride of Hartford to have painters come along and print the name of the New York, New Haven and Hartford in its abbreviated style on the trestle that carries the railroad tracks across Asylum street, in the center here. When the words "New Haven Railroad" appeared in gleaming white letters on both faces of the trestle, a storm rose that was not stilled until the painters came back and did the work all over again. They changed the legend to read "New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad," and Hartford was satisfied once more. In all the hundreds of trestles of the New Haven, only the one here has had a change made in its lettering.

Lost Forty Years, Watch Is Recovered

HOWELL, Mich., Sept. 5.—A gold watch, lost 40 years ago by William Lyons, now 75 years old, was plowed up near Brighton recently. Lyons lost the time piece when he was drawing corn and although a careful search for it was made at that time, it could not be found. It was in perfect condition, when found with the exception of a little rust on the works which a jeweler soon removed.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Peter's Adventures

THE SENTINEL'S CHALLENGE Busy peered up at a daisy clock hanging on the wall.

"Goodness gracious me," said she. "Here it is, well on toward forenoon. And we've done nothing, you and I, but gossip. We hurried back to pick up some eggs and we've not even gone to the nurseries. By the way, boy, the nurseries are upstairs, at least in the daytime. We carry the eggs up there every morning so that the bright sun may shine upon them and warm them up. And every night we tote the eggs back to the underground rooms so that they will not be chilled by the cool air of evening. To reach the nurseries we shall have to climb a steep grade. We're at the corridor entrance this minute."

The narrow passage which the two now entered was as dark as the entrance hall had been, and although there were no steps, at once the boy felt he was going up. He felt the air growing warmer.

"How far do we walk in darkness?" asked Peter, who could not just wait and see. Before Busy could reply a harsh voice cried:

"Halt! Who goes there?"

Peter gasped with fright and stood stock still, his eyes trying to pierce the gloom. But Busy didn't act a bit disturbed. Instead, she replied promptly:

"To friends!"

"Advance and give the counter-sign!" came the stern order.

"Moving day!" cried Busy.

"Right. Forward march!" Now the voice was more friendly.

A shiver ran up and down his spine. Something was tickling him on the face, the neck. It felt like long, slender fingers. Peter gasped.

Next: "One Way to Tell a Friend in the Dark."

Skunk Brings Tree Sitter Back To Earth

(International News Service) PLAINVIEW, Texas, Sept. 5.—L. T. Brumagen might have made a big name as an endurance tree sitter if it had not been for a skunk which wanted to occupy the same tree with him.

Brumagen had been up 56 hours and was going strong when the skunk decided to keep him company. The boy, needless to say, discovered the skunk's desire in short order.

He yelled lustily for help, which came. The skunk was driven away, but Brumagen was forced to abandon the tree just the same.

To Use Trust Fund For Farm School

Fund Left Several Years Ago Has Now Grown To $300,000

(International News Service) HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 5.—A trust fund established twenty-five years ago under the will of the late Ratcliffe Hicks, of Tolland has now grown to be $300,000 and is to be used to establish a school in Tolland county to teach practical farming. By chance the state agricultural school is in Tolland county, and efforts are being directed to have the college named as administrator of the fund. Special legislation being needed, a bill covering the situation will go to the General Assembly that meets here next January.

Hicks made his money by investments in real estate in New Haven and Bridgeport, but always maintained his farm in Tolland. Before his death, he built a public school for the town. The fund is so invested now that the management sees the time when it will total $1,200,000.

(International News Service) HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 5.—All the wit in Hollywood isn't preserved in gelatine. In point of fact, some of the funniest touches occur spontaneously to enliven the prosaic work of turning out pictures. For instance, when the players in his company began having pets over this and that. Growing tired of the squabbling, Sloan sent out for a couple of gross pacifiers—the little rubber business-babies are given to chew on when they aren't feeling right—and every time the director heard of an artist having a tantrum he would dispatch a pacifier, with his compliments.

Court To Award "Wolf Pack" Rewards

(International News Service) LAMAR, Colo., Sept. 5.—The district court here will be called upon to determine which parties shall receive the $12,000 in rewards that were offered for the capture of the "wolf pack" that robbed the First National bank of Lamar, with resultant murder of four persons. The rewards are due to be paid now that three of the four members of the gang have been executed at the Colorado penitentiary. Jake Fleagle, the fourth bandit, is hiding out in the wilds of Wyoming.

Eight parties thus far have claimed either all or a part of the huge reward that was placed on the heads of the robbers shortly after their crime.

Vessel Outrides Severe Hurricane.

Steamer Docks With Weird Tales Of Being Buffeted About By Severe Wind

FOUGHT STORM SEVEN HOURS

(International News Service)
SAN JUAN, P.R., Sept. 5.—A storm-raked vessel buffeted for more than seven hours by the hurricane which devastated the Dominican republic was in port today after out-riding the worst disturbance the Caribbean has known in decades.

Captain Thomas Evans of the Porto Rico Liner Coamo, who brought his ship safely through the center of the blast, told a graphic story of being tossed about on the waves by a wind estimated at a 150-mile-an-hour velocity, frequently careening the ship at a 45 degree angle.

The Coamo, bearing passengers from San Juan to Santo Domingo, was caught in the vortex of the storm Wednesday morning. Her wireless failed early, leaving her helpless on a furious sea.

Coamo had the unique experience of passing through the center of the hurricane, emerging from a raging ocean into a vacuum where complete calm existed. In those few moments, Captain Evans said the sun shone brightly and sea birds hovered about the ship.

Deck Is Stripped
The hull continued for only a few moments, however, and then the ship was caught in a maelstrom of wind and rain of such force that the vessel heeled over until her lee rail was submerged.

The barometer plunged crazily, Captain Evans said, and the wind stripped the decks of everything but solidly attached objects. The valiant crew stuck to its posts, tightly grasping steel posts and bunkers with one hand while keeping the engines in operation with the other.

Passengers were kept under close surveillance to prevent panic, but so well behaved and orderly did they conduct themselves that Captain Evans had unlimited praise for them. In this pitching ship on a slashing sea not one single injury occurred.

Unable to land his passengers at Santo Domingo, Captain Evans turned back to this port, where he will await further orders.

Publisher Is Again Fugitive

Robert Burns Escapes From Troop County Chain Gang In Florida

(International News Service)
LA GRANGE, Ga., Sept. 5.—Authorities today were convinced that Robert Elliott Burns, former Chicago publisher who escaped from a troop county chain gang for the second time yesterday, has succeeded in putting Georgia behind him in his flight. Bloodhounds were unable to pick up Burns' trail from the chain-gang camp, eight miles from here, from which he calmly walked away yesterday morning unnoticed. Because of the bloodhounds' failure to pick up a trail, the authorities believed he made his getaway in an automobile.

Burns, discharged from the army in 1922, and penniless, with two other men, staged a $4 hold-up in Atlanta, and got $133 as his share. He was sentenced from six to ten years on the chain gang but served less than two months of his sentence when he escaped.

He virtually dropped out of existence until June 26 of last year when he was found in Chicago where he had become a $20,000 a year publisher of a successful magazine. Officers said the arrest came on information furnished by Mrs. Burns, who revealed her husband's criminal records because the publisher had transferred his affections to another woman.

Burns was returned to Georgia to finish his term. Soon, however, he filed application for a pardon or commutation of sentence before the state prison commission. The pardon commission denied the petition.

Burns escaped from the camp yesterday while he was going to a well near the prison camp to get a bucket of water. He did not return.

Rescue Mission Plans Campaign

Solicitors Will See Contributors To This Worthy Cause Within Few Days

The Board of Directors of the City Rescue Mission met last night and completed plans for the campaign to raise $4000 to meet the immediate financial obligations of the mission. Members of the mission board and a number of friends of the mission will, in the next few days, call upon all regular and former supporters of the mission to solicit contributions for the present emergency. In order to forestall any attempt by unscrupulous persons who might take advantage of this campaign for their own profit, all authorized solicitors will carry a letter of identification from the mission board. This letter will be gladly shown when requested.

Plans are progressing for the Campaign which will be launched following the completion of the present select solicitations for immediate relief. The mission is constantly ministering to those in need. Last night thirteen men were furnished beds and baths. As winter approaches the calls for help will multiply.

Kidnaping Case Two Years Old May Be Solved

Arrest Of Charles Edward Pope, May Lead To Knowledge Of Grace Budd's Whereabouts

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—A solution of the mystery kidnaping of Grace Budd, 10, which the nation's police have tried to solve for two years, was advanced today in the arrest of Charles Edward Pope, 65-year-old apartment caretaker.

Pope was arrested after his wife, Mrs. Jessie Pope of Williamsville, Erie county, New York, told police he had kidnaped the child. She said she had been seriously ill and for that reason had not reported the crime until now. Pope said his arrest was a plot by relatives.

Mrs. Della Budd, mother of the missing child, however, identified Pope as the man who, calling himself Frank Howard, a farmer, drove off with the girl June 3, 1928.

Detectives grilled Pope in the hope of locating the girl.

Believes Theft Of Mona Lisa A Hoax

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Was the Mona Lisa really ever stolen from its niche in the Louvre? Baron T. T. Tronckh, writing in "Candide," says that a government employee in good position to know the facts, is inclined to believe that if the celebrated painting ever disappeared it was under very different circumstances from those that were reported to the public.

According to his opinion, at the time of its disappearance a very serious political crisis was bringing about important discussions in France and worrying the president of the council to no small extent. Desirous of reflecting the attention of the general public from these events, it is believed that he heartily encouraged and even made possible this spectacular robbing of the treasure, as well as the great amount of publicity over the affair. When the crisis was passed the famous "Joconde" had been found.

Famous 'Smoke Eater' Is Slated To Retire

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—"Smoke Joe" Martin, most famous smoke eater of New York's fire department, has gulped his last lungful of the acrid substance, it is believed, for he is expected to retire at the end of his vacation.

"Smoke Joe", 66, could have retired 20 years ago, but he wouldn't. When he was a captain he was found face down in a fume-filled cellar manning a hose his comrades had deserted. The chief carried him out and shouted, "Boys, this is Smoke Joe Martin, and by the gods he loves it." That way he got his nickname, and rose to senior assistant fire chief. He has been knocked out many times and made 20 ambulance trips in his 46 years of fire fighting. But last spring he collapsed again at a big fire and suffered a heart attack. He has not been on duty since. "Smoke Joe" as a baby was accustomed to fumes. He was born in the old gas house district and has lived nearby ever since.

Horse Electrocuted; Child Rider Unhurt

(International News Service)

TAMPICO, Mex., Sept. 5.—How a horse was electrocuted by a falling wire and a small child astride the animal's back escaped injury is related by San Preston, fire marshal of Tampico. Preston reported that the horse was hitched to a pole with the child on the horse's back when an electric wire snapped and fell, striking the horse. The horse was instantly killed but the child was thrown clear and uninjured as the horse fell.

Again Warns Of Need For Prompt Gas Tax Returns

HARRISBURG, Sept. 5.—Delinquencies of dealers in liquid fuels has caused Charles Johnson, Secretary of Revenue, to send each of them a letter cautioning that the liquid fuels tax law requires that they make return and pay the three cents tax per gallon before the fifteenth of the month following the sale or use of such liquid fuels. Secretary Johnson also pointed out that these returns and payments may be made to any accredited representative of the department who presents his authority in the form of an official department badge, together with credentials bearing the signature of the Secretary of Revenue and the seal of the department.

"Disputed accounts," wrote Mr. Johnson, "may be adjusted by the department's accredited representative, and payments made to such representative and credited to your account, but final adjustment or settlement must be approved by headquarters' office at Harrisburg." Attaches of the Gasoline Tax Division, which is a section of the Motor Vehicles Bureau, under the direction of Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon, are conducting a drive against delinquents among gasoline dealers. Conviction and a jail sentence in the case of a Dauphin county dealer has been followed by a fifteen months' jail sentence for a Lewistown dealer. The latter not only withheld $400 tax, but some time ago sent the At-

to:ney General's collection agents a check which proved to be of the rubber variety.

FRENCH WATERING PLACES ARE GAY AND COLORFUL ALL YEAR ROUND

While the summer resort season in the United States closes the end of August, French watering places are gay all the year round. Among them is Juan les Pins, which has the unique distinction of being the only winter beach resort in the world which is more frequented in summer than in winter. The natural beauty of sea and shore at these French play spots has been enhanced by the magnificent buildings and the lovely effects secured by landscape gardeners. Particularly enough, an American, Frank Jay Gould, was the one who discovered the latent charm of many of these places and has, according to a Parisian newspaper, done more to enhance them than any one since Louis XIV. Above at left is pictured the Chateau de la Roche at Bagnolles de l'Orne, residence of Madame Duval, and one of the show places of this famous watering place in northern France. Center, is the Establishment Thermal at the same place; and at the right is the Hotel Normandie at Granville, the Monaco of the north. Below, at left, is pictured a favorite beach pastime at Juan les Pins, and right is the children's athletic class doing setting up exercises on the beach at the same resort.

SANTO DOMINGO HURRICANE TOLL NEARS THOUSAND

R. Hanson Weightman issued the following hurricane warning:

"The tropical disturbance is apparently central this morning over or near the north central coast of Cuba with greatly diminished intensity."

"No strong winds reported."

"The disturbance will likely continue moving west northward during the next 24 or 36 hours without damaging winds."

Major Catastrophe

San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 5.—Governor Theodore Roosevelt of Porto Rico, advised by personal representatives who visited hurricane-ridden Santo Domingo by airplane that the island territory had suffered a major catastrophe, launched vigorous relief measures today.

The Governor told International News Service that Major Cary I. Crockett of the United States Army and his personal aide, hastily dispatched to Santo Domingo, wireless back to him information that the official city death list stood at 800, with more than 900 treated for serious injuries a few hours after the storm.

President Rafael Trujillo personally told Major Crockett that three fourths of the city lay in ruins, giving rise to urgent need for medical relief and supplies of water, food and clothing.

United States Minister Charles B. Curtis advised Major Crockett that the American legation property fared badly during the storm but as far as could be ascertained no Americans or Europeans had been killed or injured.

Other Islands Hit

Havana, Sept. 5.—Radio messages received here indicated that smaller islands in the vicinity of Santo Domingo Republic also had suffered severely in the hurricane that devastated the main island.

According to information today, the tiny mountainous island of Dominica in the leeward islands suffered 20 deaths and many injuries when the typhoon struck Wednesday with all its force. The property damage was immense, and the only wireless station on the little island was wrecked.

Dominica, largest of five presidencies in the leeward islands, has about 50,000 inhabitants and an area of 300 square miles. A large part of the population consists of negro slaves. The capital is Roseau, with a population of 6,800. The only other city on the island is Portsmouth, named by Columbus in 1493.

Tail End Of Storm

Port Au Prince, Sept. 5.—Heavy wind and rain swept across Haiti on the tail-end of the hurricane which devastated Santo Domingo, without inflicting much damage here.

Relieved that the brunt of the storm spent itself elsewhere, Haiti was busy today rushing relief to the stricken neighbors. The government dispatched supplies and medical needs and scores of rescue workers. Another party bearing emergency supplies was making its way to the neighboring republic over the high mountains which Wednesday fended off the violent storm.

Plans To Aid

New York, Sept. 5.—Plans for New York to aid hurricane sufferers in Santo Domingo were to be launched at a meeting today. Representatives of the Dominican Consulate in New

U. S. Coast Sale

Miami, Fla., Sept. 5.—Possibility that the tropical hurricane which devastated Santo Domingo might inflict similar damage to the coast of the United States was considered here today following issuance of a bulletin by Richard W. Gray, United States meteorologist.

"The tropical storm has just about blown itself out at the north coast of Cuba," Gray's report stated. He added there was little likelihood that Florida would feel any effects of the storm inasmuch as the remnants of the tornado disturbance were last reported heading toward the Florida Straits between Keywest and Havana.

1,000 Fatalities

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 5.—The cataclysm of death which rode a path of devastation, hunger and suffering laid by a terrific hurricane across the city and Dominican Republic left approximately 1,000 fatalities in its wake and as many injuries, according to today's estimates.

A day and night of groping by native rescue squads amidst the appalling ruins and scenes of horror revealed that the four-hour storm of unprecedented fury which reared out of the Caribbean on Wednesday demolished three fourths of the city, destroying power and water plants. Even greater disaster was feared on penetration into the unreported inland provinces.

President Directs Relief

President Rafael Trujillo, personally directing first relief attempts, issued an official announcement estimating the dead at 800 and injured at 900. It was expected, however, that the casualty list would be greatly augmented as rescue workers progressed in their task of extracting victims from the shambles of a city in ruins.

The stunned inhabitants overwhelmed by the catastrophe, wandered over the debris in shocked silence, hungry and thirsty. Martin law regulated every movement, with the entire Dominican army on duty to maintain order and assist in rescue task. Sporadic looting was reported from various quarters, but in the main the population remained orderly.

Await Relief

The difficult work of feeding almost 50,000 persons was valiantly attempted by the government, now hopefully awaiting the arrival of relief expeditions on the way here from neighboring lands. The storm contaminated a large part of the city's drinking water and wiped out a good deal of the ready food supply, raising the accompanying spectre of disease in the midst of an already death stricken vicinity.

Army doctors and nurses rushed about the stricken business and residential sections administering first aid to the injured, leaving the task of removing the dead to the soldiers. Harrowing scenes were enacted throughout the day and night as relatives searched the tumbled masses of iron and stone for families.

City in Darkness

Rescue and relief work was made increasingly difficult by failure of the electric plant to function leaving the city in darkness throughout the night. Undaunted by all handicaps, soldiers and civilians toiled tirelessly in the red light of torches and fires to bring temporary relief to those caught under fallen walls and trees, while doctors patched and operated under almost insurmountable obstacles.

The littered streets at dawn were pathetic with bewildered natives wandering aimlessly about in hope of finding missing relatives. Government officials circulated busily about seeking to stimulate the wanderers into assisting troops at their alleviation work.

The families hardest hit and suffering most were singled out as objects of immediate relief. The poorer residential section was practically obliterated, although the wealthier residential homes were not spared.

Damage $15,000,000

Business areas suffered as much, and a large bridge across the river Ozama was wrecked.

The width of the swath of disaster cut by the storm made definite estimation of the property damaged at present impossible, but a conservative figure would not fall under $15,000,000.

The hurricane, sweeping in from the sea in the early part of Wednesday afternoon, howled through the streets with a force so appalling that it practically paralyzed the city immediately. Mounting to a velocity of 150 miles an hour, the wind lifted away the rooftops with the ease of a giant hand, showering the air in a snowstorm of flying debris. Small huts and native dwellings sailed skyward as the more solid buildings crashed with explosive roars, filling the air with the screams and shouts of horrified humanity.

Trees, wires, spires and statues were hurled down, killing the fleeing residents by the score. Scenes of horror and disorder such as burst loose with the storm have never been witnessed before in this city. The whole area was a madhouse.

Out of the insane asylum meanwhile poured half its inmates, laughing shrieking and adding to the general confusion and horror. The soughing blast flung human beings, animals and solid objects up and down like bouncing balls, burying hundreds in the collapse of splintering structures.

Diamond Causing Germans To Worry About Departure

German Officials Make New Plans For Shipping Jack "Lags" Diamond Home

(International News Service)

BREMEN, Germany, Sept. 5.—Jack "Lags" Diamond, New York gangster, today continued unwittingly to play with German police officials the role of the bear which the hunter caught by the tail.

Having had no difficulty whatever in arresting Diamond, whom no one, including the American authorities, appears to want, the German police are having the utmost difficulty in letting him go.

The latest information available here today was that arrangements had been made to place the dapper gangster aboard the North German Lloyd freighter Hannover, which sails from Hamburg on Saturday and is due to arrive at Philadelphia on September 23.

Previous to the announcement of these arrangements the chief of police of this city had officially declared Diamond would be placed aboard the Hamburg-American liner Hamburg, scheduled to sail tomorrow. This plan apparently fell through, however, as had other plans to place Diamond aboard any one of a number of other steamers.

Meanwhile Diamond remained in the Hamburg jail, impatiently but philosophically awaiting definite decision as to his disposal.

Stribling's newly-discovered punch would have seemed even more remarkable if it had knocked Scott perpendicular.

Correct this sentence: "Yes, she is beautiful," said the fond remark, "but I am training her to make a good wife for a poor man."

Property Owners Must Lay Walks

Ordinances compelling the laying of sidewalks on several streets of the city will be drawn, following action of city council today. Between Greenwood and Lowry avenue on State street, both sides, walks must be laid, also on the south side of State street between Grant street and the city line. Walks must also be laid on Mercer street between Euclid and the city line and on Euclid avenue between Highland and Mercer. Some of them are already laid.

Repairs Completed At Willow Grove

Repairs on the Willow Grove bridge completed under the direction of the county commissioners, have placed it in much better condition. Iron plates about two feet wide have been fastened to the planks along the entire length of the bridge. They are of convenient width apart to accommodate automobiles. Planks which have been loose, have also been securely fastened and the bridge has been strengthened from underneath.

Catches 10-Inch Fish With His Bare Hands

(International News Service)
DENVER, Col., Sept. 5.—Perhaps this is not the biggest fish story of the season, but it will be a hard one to beat.

Julian C. Riley, Denver radio expert, is an inveterate follower of the rod and reel. On a recent week-end, however, he cast his rod aside, leaped into a mountain stream and caught a ten-inch rainbow trout with his hands. To give the trout its full share of credit, Riley explains that the stream was very small and that it really wasn't so difficult to chase the trout in a shallow pool.

Wall Street at last sympathizes with the farmer. It would go broke, too, if it couldn't water its stock.

WOULD REPLACE HANDSHAKE BY NOSE RUBBING

Ought To Help Handkerchief Business If Fad Becomes Popular

(International News Service)
PARIS, Sept. 5.—Rubbing noses will take the place of the usual French hand-shaking in the future, if Georges de la Fouchardiere, well-known columnist of "L'Oeuvre" has anything to do with it.

Hand shaking is not an exchange of courtesies, contends the Frenchman, it is only a big nuisance which does not flatter, merely annoys. "We've got to get away from it," writes Mr. de la Fouchardiere, "especially in hot weather, because there are people who have hands as soft as jelly or dry and hard like a monkey's hand, or viscous and frigid as a snake. Then there are more who have cold and dampy 'fishy' hands."

"Why grab a fellow-human by the hand and wring it or squeeze the fleshy bones through the skin? Why? I ask you if rubbing noses wouldn't be much better, a much less barbarous fashion. Everyone knows that men hate to come into contact with each other. They won't drink from the same glass, they detest sitting in an already warmed seat, they hate to rub elbows or knees."

"And yet politeness demands that a hundred times a day, more or less, and usually more in France, the rite of the handshake be fulfilled, despite our repugnance. The nose doesn't usually get into the so many places as the hand, so let it be down with handshake and on with the nose-rub, from now on."

Justice Arthur T. LeBlanc, of the supreme court of New Brunswick, will preside at the ceremonies.

Soap sales have increased this year, indicating a wholesale desire to clean up someplace besides Wall Street.

Scenic Cave Found In Death Valley Rim

Explorers Believe It Once Was The Floor Of An Inland Sea

TONOPAH, Nev. Sept. 5.—A new mammoth cave has been found by four men who dared stifling heat and humid, stale air to descend into hitherto unpenetrated depths of a cleft of rocks on the fringe of Death Valley.

Letson Balliet, consulting engineer of Tonopah, and his associates climbed down several hundred feet with the aid of a 500-foot rope.

Balliet's study of the formations convinced him the cave extends to water level of Death Valley, which would make the place a mile deep, since it begins at the end of an abandoned mining tunnel 4,200 feet above sea level.

The explorers found heat of 120 to 130 degrees at the point where their descent began. They said the heat increased until it became difficult to breathe.

Rare beauties in stalactites were found. Masses of them were covered with needle-like crystals, almost like highly exaggerated frost patterns.

Balliet said he believed they were formed under water.

Balliet thinks the upper part of the cave once was the floor of a sea. He said indications that the earth had lifted were shown by limestone strata, eight to 20 feet thick, piled like timbers, but standing at angles, due presumably to earth thrust.

TEST TUBE TELLS STANDARD IN ALL ROAD MATERIALS

Experts Pass Upon Each Item Necessary For New Highways

HARRISBURG, Sept. 5.—Modern highways as constructed by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways are literally a product of the "test tube" according to a typical month's performance of the Department's testing laboratory as reported today to Samuel Eckels, chief engineer. Tests are made of every item of material used in construction even to the shovels welded by the laborer and the water that goes into the concrete.

During July, the laboratory tested and analyzed 13,469 samples of asphalt, tar, sand, stone, paint, cement, steel, concrete and miscellaneous materials. Each substance had a specific standard to meet and was rejected if it failed. Employees made 3,857 inspections and investigations at cement plants, steel mills and other production plants in the same period.

A new laboratory building, housing chemical, physical and research laboratories, is nearing completion and is now occupied, replacing rented quarters that outgrew the volume of work and were inconvenient. The new structure of brick is two stories, carefully designed throughout to meet the needs of various test methods.

Within the new laboratory is the centre of materials control for the entire Department. A chemical laboratory staff analyzes materials for content of the various elements required or prohibited. Even water is subjected to rigid tests and instances were barred and water was piped long distances. This is particularly true in mining sections where sulphur often occurs in the water, making it unfit and injurious to concrete work.

Special Machines
A physical laboratory tests the strength of steel, stone, sample beams for new highway pavement, guard cable and many other items. When physical tests were inaugurated by the Department it is necessary in some cases to design a special machine with which to make the tests. In other cases, the Department engineers improved existing devices.

The new laboratory is fitted with the most modern and especially adapted equipment available. Speed and accuracy in the tests were considered in collecting the equipment and consideration was given employees. A sound-proof room was provided for a huge machine that tests bricks, known as the "rattler." Bricks are fired about in a metal chamber, literally bombarded with heavy shot and subjected to all manner of wear to determine how they may be expected to stand up in traffic.

A research laboratory is constantly utilized by engineers to improve existing standards and study various problems entering into highway construction, maintenance and operation. Design of road markers, signs and safety devices is a function of this branch, which also tests guard rail under actual conditions. The visibility of paint and its wearing qualities, when used for markers on pavement, are closely scrutinized by test engineers. This laboratory originated the practice of chemically treating cinders for use on icy highways, treating them so they become imbedded in the ice and provide a tractive surface.

Carnegie Playground Awards Are Presented At Annual Banquet

Thursday night proved to be a real night for some 200 children who have done outstanding work at the Carnegie playground this summer, and invited guests, at the final party given to 50 girls and boys received prizes for their efforts. Miss May Martin, supervisor of the playground acted as toastmistress.

A well arranged exhibition of work done by the children was shown in the auditorium for the last big occasion before the closing of the playground on Saturday. Glancing at the exhibition of work one would jump to the conclusion that the girls attain much skill during the summer months by attending the recreational center of the city. The exhibition included beautiful purses, baskets, rafta pocketbooks and many other cleverly made things.

Guests were present from several divisions of the Carnegie Steel plant. Following a delicious supper prepared by a staff of cooks who prepared the menu to perfection, several speakers made short speeches congratulating the kiddies for the work done and also complimented the supervisors.

Local Playground Best
A. W. Matthieson, head of the welfare department of the Carnegie system, whose office is in Pittsburgh gave a short address. War Veteran Is Missing From Home

Search Is Started For Trace Of James Fogarty Who Disappeared Wednesday

A statewide search has been instituted for James Fogarty, 42, World War veteran, who disappeared from his home, 1205 School street, Wednesday.

Fogarty had been suffering from a mental disease and was on the list for government hospitalization for over two months.

The man's description has been broadcast over the police teletype. Members of the Perry S. Gaston Post, No. 343, American Legion, of which he is a member, have become interested in the case and are aiding in the search.

Fogarty left the home of his brother John Fogarty, at 6 p. m. Wednesday, telling his mother, Mrs. Margaret Fogarty, that he was going to take his usual walk. Relatives and friends have not heard of him since.

Fogarty delighted in long walks and had often told friends that he would like to participate in a long hike in the country. His illness, while not severe, had made him harmless. He became affected about eight months ago and had been waiting to enter a government hospital.

J. Orville Potter of the local veterans' bureau said today that Fogarty had never been examined by a physician to determine the extent of his illness.

Fogarty served during the late war in the Fifth Division in France. The description broadcast to police departments in the state was furnished by relatives. Fogarty is five feet, nine inches in height. When he left home he wore a blue suit, blue shirt, black shoes and a cap. His weight is about 170 pounds.

August Weather Far From Normal

Deficiency In Mean Temperature Shown Despite Excessive Heat During Month

Despite the fact that one of the hottest days of the summer was experienced during the month, and the early part of August was extremely warm, there was a deficiency in the mean average temperature during the month. The rainfall was also far below the normal average.

Statistics compiled by U. S. Observer B. F. Johnson, show a mean maximum temperature for the month of 85.6 degrees, a mean minimum temperature of 53.7 and a mean average temperature of 68.7. This was 1.9 degree below the mean normal average. The maximum was 3.8 degrees above the normal average, but the minimum was 7.4 degrees below the average. The highest temperature was recorded on August 5, when the mercury hit an even hundred. The lowest temperature was on August 13, when it dropped to 38 degrees. The greatest daily range was 47 degrees on August 14.

There were 164 inches of rainfall recorded during the month, the greatest fall in 24 hours being .67 inches on August 22. There were 13 days with .01 inches or more of rainfall. 16 days were clear, seven partly cloudy, and eight cloudy. The normal precipitation for the month is 32.1, a deficiency of 157 inches being shown. 1929, the rainfall was 1.8 inches below normal and the temperature was 5 degrees below normal. Last year, the mean minimum was 9.6 degrees, the nights having been extremely cool all through August. The river stage reached an average stage of 3.8 feet.

French Becoming Heavy Beer Drinkers

Statistics Released Show Them To Be Equal Of Germans

(International News Service)
PARIS, Sept. 5.—Gentlemen in France preferred blondes as well as brunettes during the year 1929, according to the beer figures which have just been published, showing that 1,800,000,000 litres of the light or dark brown liquid slipped down the throats of the population within twelve months. These statistics confirm the fact that the French are becoming big beer-drinkers, in fact, it is expected that within a few more years, they will almost equal their German neighbors. Beer, next to coffee, is about the cheapest drink one can get in France.

But this means French beer, of course, for the so-called pilsner or Munich varieties are far more expensive. One German's back is drunk for about 15,000 French ones, but all the French cafes have large signs indicating their German supply. It is rumored that steps are being taken to fine French cafe-owners who sell false German beer at high prices.

"Doc" Stork Frees Automobile Speeder

(International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 5.—"Doc" Stork of the flapping wings and elongated bill, played an important part in the release of Ernest Shaw, Shawnee, Kan., who was arrested for speeding through the city at 45 miles an hour.
Shaw by way of explanation in police court, whispered his alibi into the judicial ear of Carlin P. Smith, presiding magistrate.
"Wed, well, well," exclaimed Judge Smith. "Hurry on now, and I hope it's a boy."

PRETTY WELL, THANKS
"Chlorine" said Chlorine's mistress, "I've heard about your hard luck and I'm terribly sorry."
"Deed, ma'am, Ah ain't had no hard luck."
"Why wasn't your husband killed in a railroad accident last year?"
"Oh, yes ma'am, but dat's his hard luck, not mine."—Hoof Prints.

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

Letters intended for this column must be signed with name and address of writer.

SENDS CONGRATULATIONS.

New Castle, Pa. September 3, 1930.
Mr. Fred L. Rentz, President The News Company, City.

Dear Fred:
I am with considerable interest that The News is about to celebrate its Fiftieth Anniversary. A half century of continuous service to the community in which it is located. That is a long time anyway one figures it. A great organization like yours gathers momentum as it goes and nothing can turn it aside.

An acorn planted on the 11th day of September 1880, has become a spreading oak. A good name is a valuable trade mark and the name "The News Company" is indicative of fair dealing and a liberal policy of administration.

I shall be interested in reading the history of The News because like almost every other institution it's early struggles were likely so picturesque, that a somewhat detailed account of it's small beginning is worth recording.

It is doubtful if there are any cities in the United States that can boast of very many successfully conducted business enterprises started fifty years ago that are now in existence.

You are to be congratulated account of an inquiry made by the radio journal, "Le Haut Parleur," (Loud Speaker). It received 1,102 votes among the readers who answered the question, with the violin following in second place with 996 votes to its credit. Next came the cello, with 984, and some distance behind the Hawaiian guitar, the cornet, the flute, the bugle and finally the saxophone with only 128 votes.

In a few more years, no veteran need answer the question: "What did you do in the great war, dad?" He can just point at the bookcase.

With cordial good wishes, I am
Most sincerely,
M. J. DONNELLY.

New Tree Pest Is Uncovered In New Haven

(International News Service)
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 5—A new pest has walked into the woodlands of Connecticut to take its place with the chestnut blight which after a start in 1907 swept the chestnut trees from the eastern states; the white pine blister, which has caused havoc among one of the best trees in Connecticut, and the willow scab, which has taken large toll in the state. The new pest is a maple leaf disease, and like the chestnut blight and the white pine blister, seems to have been imported, according to authority.

The state agricultural experiment station here has issued a sizable work on the new pest which was first discovered in North Stamford, in the heart of the New York commuting zone. Dr. C. G. DeBor, of Yale university, found the thing on September 3, 1935, as he was winding up a summer of work among the trees. Francis A. Bartlett was with him, according to the story developed by Paul R. Bowen, a forestry student who has made the pest the subject of his thesis.

"At first glance it was thought that the observed phenomenon was a sun-scorched wilt," says Mr. Bowen. The observation was made among sugar maples that possessed unusual foliage. "Observation revealed tiny white fruiting bodies of a parasite fungus on the under surface of the affected leaves. The attack had been very sudden. The wilted leaves, though green, had a grayish tinge. A slight shaking of the trees caused the affected leaves to fall freely."

The state immediately set to work to learn just what the pest might be. Collections of diseased leaves and small trees were made in several places in Connecticut that autumn, and scientists plunged into the work of establishing a name. Potted sugar maples were forced into leafing "by treatments with ethylene chlorhydrin from 30 to 60 days before leafing of check trees, and from 60 to 90 days before leafing occurred in the field," say Mr. Bowen.

Meanwhile research indicated the disease was "the causal organism known as Cristulariella deprecadans," as identified by European specimens. The next step was to take pure cultures of this thing, and start inoculation experiments. This "produced the characteristic symptoms of the disease as found in the field."

Now Dr. G. P. Clinton, botanist, in charge of the experiment station, comes to the aid of tree lovers with the statement:

"This disease, however, unlike the others, is not likely to prove a serious trouble, since it has rarely been found, and then only under unusually moist conditions, and at a time late in summer when the injury is not so important as it would be earlier in the season."

The willow scab has killed many large shade trees, especially in the northwestern part of the state. The white pine blister has raised havoc among seedling pines in the stage needed for natural reproduction in the pine areas. The chestnut blight has left the state with only seedlings and sprouts from the old stumps.

Winter Rations Given To Cows

MERCER, Sept. 5—The scarcity of pasture for cattle is emphasized in the story told by W. H. Crawford, local dairyman with 30 head of cows who has been feeding the animals beet pulp and cut hay for several weeks.

Pasture on his farm was burned so brown that it was no value as food. With a daily reduction in milk Crawford was forced to adopt the ration which his stores would be rated a winter food menu.

Doomed Birds Of Prey

Hawks and Owls the relative bird to the Eagle are threatened with extinction, as they are classed as Vermin.

By OWEN PENFIELD FOX

Up in the northern Wilderness unspoiled by man, where forest trails wind their way through pines and hemlocks, that reach way up to kiss the blue of heaven, where woodland streams many years ago buffeted the canoe of redman, is the ancestral home of the Eagle, the very emblem of courage and freedom. The American Indian gave the eagle great protection, as they held it sacred, because it was the only living thing that got closest to God in its aerial flights.

But today the hunter has penetrated into the very heart of the wilderness, and slaughtered this bird until it has become almost extinct. And still this destruction goes on reaching into the near clan of the Eagle, Hawks and Owls classed as birds of prey are doomed to destruction, because man says they are game destroyers. It is not my idea to exterminate the hawk from this accusation but as a nature lover I wish to make a plea in behalf of these birds, that we should not destroy for all time the work of a Great Creator and when gone never can be replaced. At one time we had a vast supply of Game and Bird Life, and man alone is responsible for its disappearance.

I have found from research that hawks do take some game, this is natural, but do you give this same hawk the credit that is due him for the amount of rats, ground, moles, snakes, and locusts he consumes. Surely he should receive some consideration for this work.

For instance, the Arctic Owl, this is indeed a rare bird. I have had the pleasure of seeing this bird alive but once, this was at our local game farm. It was with regret that I heard of its capture. A year ago I read a newspaper article that an Arctic Owl had been shot, because it swooped down from a winter's sky, into a city square, and killed two pigeons where hundreds appeared every day. "To think that this rare bird of the Arctic had to forfeit its life for two pigeons when I have seen man kill them by the dozen without giving it a thought.

The Goose Hawk is listed as a killer of upland game. Grouse, Quail, Pheasants. This bird's activities should be kept down, but not to the extent that it should perish from the earth. I have known of dozens of red shouldered hawks, who live on field mice, being killed because they belong to the hawk clan.

Who of us, do not get a thrill when we look up in the blue of heaven and see the hawk patrolling, cleaving the air on powerful wings, watching him as he circles lazily, then, a long drop, cutting the air with powerful pinions.

We go out and kill a bag full of ducks in a day and call this sport, but if one little duck falls prey to a hawk, there is a great fuss made. Some states have a law that protect the hawks. This protection is based on the knowledge of the good they do. But persons who know nothing of this just go out and kill chiefly to collect the bounty from the state.

"The Pine Martin"

One of the real killers of small birds and game is the Pine Martin. This animal frequents the places where pine trees grow plentiful, climbing ever hunting in search of bird life. The Martin is a tricky and shy animal always keeping his enemy man as far away as possible. The way the Martin travels through branches and trunks of trees is marvelous. And the way he steals unnoticed, silent in his movements enables it to get a death grip upon nesting birds, with ease. The Martin is a great nest robber and destroyer of eggs. He is a menace to all small game. The fur of the Pine Martin is of value if taken in the winter time and resembles somewhat the sable. In size the Martin is about seventeen inches in length with a tail about ten inches long which is dark brown and bushy, the hair on the body is a little lighter in color. The color varies somewhat

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Plan Course In College; Stick To It

A fair question to ask of the many men and women going off to college: Why?

A good many are just going. They had never considered why. It's the thing to do. Many others with whom they had completed high school are going. Their parents and friends expect them to go. What else can they do?

An occasional college freshman has his mind set on a particular vocation. Most have not the slightest notion about what they are preparing themselves to become. Some young women think their opportunities for marriage will be improved. No doubt they will be, and if so, very well. For a few it will also be diminished. A good college course ought to make a woman better fitted for parenthood, and a good home maker, if the man she marries has at least as much school training as she has. Some people there still are who say: "Too bad that young woman married; now her education is for naught." How absurd an attitude! If the training were of the right sort it were well that nearly all prospective mothers could be college trained, provided, of course that their husbands could be trained as well.

A few colleges are slowly introducing courses for home making particularly for women. But college men are educated still as if all were to remain as bachelors. Sensible young men as well as women, who see substantial values in life, who have ambitions to immortalize themselves through rearing children, who at least strive to be fit and worthy to be parents, do see reasons for college training which would prepare them for the biggest undertaking they could ever launch upon, bringing into life and rearing children. A step in this direction would be a college course in family relationships. Courses in child care and training and in child development loan in this direction. They are as near to real living as chemistry and calculus.

Most who enter college (certainly their parents) think of college training as a means of social influence. All seem to count it useful for increasing earning power.

Unfortunately many a good college student spends four years under the delusion that the world is waiting for him and that his less lucky high school pals will have to step back to watch him pass by them as soon as he has earned his diploma. Most college graduates have some pretty severe shocks awaiting them. Few will have let even their closest friends know all about the kinds of disappointments they have met with. Don't deceive yourself, my dear young hopeful friend going to college. On commencement day you will have just begun your education. You will enter then upon life's kindergarten. Not a great deal farther will you be even after you have finished a course in a technical school, after you have finished a professional course in law or medicine or engineering. If you have high qualities of character, if you are sufficiently humble, industrious, persevering, willing to do much more hard work, you will doubtless be a winner. But year by year the competition is becoming more and more severe. I sometimes think that our children will have a harder time to find opportunities to excel in life's achievements than we had. Nevertheless, those young men and women with the stuff in them will be in the lead. A mere diploma will not do the trick.

Now at the beginning of your college career is the time to face some of these facts. Your habits of work, your ability to plan a program and stick to it, to face difficulties and play the game to the end are now under trial and training. During your first months center your purposes about some definite life's work and don't be easily shifted from your course. Try to find the answer to the question: What is it all about?

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

POULTRY MEETINGS

Two poultry meetings will be held in Lawrence county Friday, September 5. H. H. Kauffman, poultry specialist from State College will attend both of these meetings. The first meeting will be a culling demonstration to be held at the farm of LeRoy Smith, near Pleasant Hill, Perry township at 1:30 o'clock. The meeting of the North Beaver Poultry club will be held at the home of Mrs. Jay Swisher near Enon Valley, Friday evening at 8:00 o'clock. All members of the club are urged to have their record sheets up to date at this time.

MOW GRASS IN FALL

Lawns should be cut during the fall. The common practice of allowing lawns to remain uncut during the latter part of the summer and the early fall is detrimental to the grass.

If the uncut grass is allowed to remain through the winter, the lawn will become rather spotted in the early spring and this will necessitate using more seed for rejuvenation than otherwise would be needed. Be sure to cut the grass as late as there is any growth to be cut.

HOUSE PULLETS

Housing the pullets is a practice which is surrounded by many precautions. A few important points should be observed.

Pullets raised on free range should not be housed until they are ready to start laying. All flocks of pullets should be graded and housed according to maturity. The well-developed pullet ready to lay will take care of feed requirements if given a chance, but the smaller, poorly developed birds, if housed in the same pen with laying pullets, will not have the best opportunity for development. The runs, crow-headed, and weak birds should be sold for meat and not housed as prospective layers.

Good Conditions Essential

It is important that the pullets go into the laying house in the pink of condition. If the birds are thin when put into winter quarters they will lay only a short time before going into a moult. Some poultrymen keep scratch grain in feeders before the pullets at all times after they are 14 weeks old until maturity. Access to an unlimited supply of scratch feed during this period will enable the birds to build up a reserve supply of fat.

Early hatched pullets often go into a moult and stop laying in the fall. This rest period usually lasts from 6 to 8 weeks. There is no absolutely sure method of preventing this moult, but keeping up body weight has helped. Some poultrymen mark some of their birds when they are housed and then weigh these birds at regular intervals.

Expect Increased Weight
Laying pullets should increase in weight. If the birds lose weight, it will be necessary to increase the amount of scratch feed given daily. Another practice followed by some poultrymen is to feed a fleshing mass to the pullets. A mixture of one pound of rolled oats, one pound of cornmeal, and one pound of semi-solid buttermilk to 100 birds each day has proved satisfactory. This fattening feed usually is fed at noon.

Use of light on pullets also has helped in maintaining body weight. Lights are primarily a feeding problem. Birds under lights should consume more scratch feed per day than birds not under lights. Early hatched pullets should be allowed to reach their peak of production before being put under lights. Then the lights should be used to maintain production and not to increase it. Late maturing birds can be hastened into production through the use of lights.

Seeks To Improve Automobile Drivers

(International News Service)
HARTFORD Conn., Sept. 5—An attempt was made by state and local police, the motor vehicle department, and the highway department, to compel perfect performance on the part of auto drivers. The effort was a part of a state-wide educational campaign. Voluntary tests of autos at New Haven for a week in August, also a part of the campaign, found only 209 out of 1,871 cars in perfect condition. Defective headlights led the list of parts out of kilter, officials reported.

Dentist Climbs Tree To Pull Sitter's Tooth

(International News Service)
EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Frank Chosnuqua had sat in a tree here for 839 hours, and visions of a championship danced through his head. But he was miserable with an aching tooth.

Unwilling to relinquish his chance for a record he informed watchers below of his plight. Dr. Stanley Wynn, a dentist felt sorry for the lad and clambered up the tree and pulled the throbbing molar.

Mayor Asks Motorists To Use Caution With Opening Of Schools

Says 12,000 Children Will Be Placed On Streets When Term Starts Tuesday

Careless Drivers In School Zones Can Expect No
Leniency, Mayor
Announces

Mayor William H. Gillespie, in an announcement to motorists of New Castle today calls attention to the fact that 12,000 school children of the city will be placed on the streets when the school term gets under way next Monday, and asks them to use extra caution in driving near the school zones, so as to avoid fatal accidents, such as have occurred in the past.

"Many of these children will be leaving their homes and going out onto the street, unguarded by their parents, for the first time," the mayor stated, "and their little minds do not comprehend the danger involved in running across the street unthinkingly."

"Although safety is taught in the schools, and the children are cautioned at all times to be as careful as possible, some of them forget in times of excitement. It is at such times that a little more care on the part of the motorist can prevent a fatal accident."

"The lives of these little children must be protected at all costs. Motorists should not be unmindful of the fact that the school children comprise practically one-fourth of the population of the city and they will be thrown onto the streets between the hours of 8 and 9, 12 and 1:30 and 3 and 5 o'clock each day."

Mayor Gillespie stated that motorists who ignore warning signs to drive slowly in the school zones, or who drive carelessly can expect no leniency if hailed before him on such charges.

Vaccine Virus Has No Effect On 15 Year Old Girl

BERWICK, Pa., Sept. 5.—Somewhat akin to the "tattooed lady" of circus fame, Mary Keener, 15, of this place, is glad that she doesn't have to be vaccinated again.

Ever since she was five years old,
Mary has been vaccinated every six months, each operation failing to take. This made it necessary under Pennsylvania law that she attend school on a temporary certificate.

Wednesday she received a permanent certificate from Dr. J. Moore Campbell, chief of the bureau of communicable diseases, state department of health, who recently performed the 20th vaccination operation on her.

Failure of the 20th vaccination to take resulted in the issuance of the permanent certificate slowing immunity from smallpox.

Striking Miners Find Work In Russia

(International News Service)

MOSCOW, Sept. 5.—About 600 unemployed or striking German coal miners from the Ruhr valley have been signed up by the Soviet coal syndicate for work in the Don basin and Moscow district mines at wages considerably higher than those paid to Russian workers. The Germans are said to have expressed a desire to work in Russia. The first group, principally skilled workers, is enroute to the Don basin which produces 70 per cent of the coal mined in the country.

The production in the mines has steadily decreased since the beginning of the year due to what certain portions of the press describe as gross negligence of the welfare of the workers as regards adequate food and shelter. Coal is being exported. The "Pravda" said "the whole country is crying for coal and many industries have to curtail production due to the lack of fuel."

You told recently how broadcasters imitate the sound of an airplane.
How do they imitate the sound of ocean waves?

This is accomplished with a screen

As the cradle is tilted the peas slide similar to waves beating upon the of the tilting produces varying degrees of intensity.

Taxpayer Demands His 'Rights'—And Gets 'Em

(International News Service)

DENVER, Sept. 5.—Charles Brague 24, stood on his rights as a taxpayer recently and got even more than he bargained for.

"Gentlemen, I'm a taxpayer," he told officers at central police station,
"and as a taxpayer who is putting up the money, I want to inspect the city jail."

"Sure," replied Jailer C. J. Beck, "come right along. You are going to have a thorough inspection."
Brague spent the day in jail and

Servant Trouble Does Not Trouble This Man

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 5.—No servant problem for Jacques Beraldi! Everyone of his seven hiring has been in his service over 30 years and none of them show any signs of giving notice.
The housekeeper, Madame le Balcer, entered his employ in 1876, 54 years ago. The others' terms of service are 50 years, 49 years, 46 years, 39 years, two who have been served 31 years each. M. Beraldi says there is no secret to procuring such devotion. A little appreciation does the trick, that's all.

UNABLE TO DO HER HOUSEWORK

Ten Herbs Improved Her Health And Increased Energy.

"Ten Herbs helped me so much that it made a wonderful change in my appearance," was the statement of Mrs. John S. Wheaton, Route 6, Mt.
Oliver, Station, Pa. (near Pittsburgh).

MRS. JOHN S. WHEATON

"I had suffered from stomach, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism for two years," continued Mrs. Wheaton. "I was not able to do my housework as there were terrible pains across the small of my back. It was impossible for me to walk upstairs—had to use my hands and knees. My stomach was so badly disordered that food would ferment, causing gas and bloating. I had to be very careful what I ate. My hands had a numb feeling."

"A neighbor, who had derived good results from Ten Herbs, advised me to try my medicine. Before I had finished the first bottle, I felt improved, and it was not long until my liver and kidneys were working as they should. The pains left my back, and I was able to do my housework again. My stomach was benefited so much that I could enjoy my meals without having distress afterwards.
My circulation was improved, and my hands no longer get numb. I am pleased to give Ten Herbs my endorsement."

Ten Herbs is marvelous for disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, also for rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Ten Herbs is sold at Eckerd's of New Castle, Inc., 30 E. Washington St., this city, and by all leading druggists throughout this entire section.

Prince And Parents Talk Differently

(International News Service)

LONDON, Sept. 5.—"The pronunciation of the Prince of Wales is that of a young man, and King George and Queen Mary talk a perfectly different type of English."

This was the statement made by F. G. Blandford, when lecturing on Modern English Pronunciation at Cambridge University.

"Most people in England who speak with a bad accent try to alter it for the better," he added, "but women are far more pliable than men in this respect."

"England always has the advantage that English speakers regard good speech as good manners."

"Our principle in pronunciation is to give the least shock to the least number."

"Many servant-maids in England talk habitually the most correct English to their mistresses. But immediately they return to the kitchen they relapse into the fruitiest cockney."

Value Wyoming Ores At 151 Billions

(International News Service)

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Sept. 5.—An estimated value of 151 billion dollars has been placed on the mineral resources of Wyoming by John G. Marzel, state geologist.

Coal, according to Marzel, is the state's mineral resource of the greatest ultimate value. The recoverable coal lying within 2,000 feet of the surface amounts to nearly two tril-lions of tons, he said.

The petroleum of the state, Marzel declared, though hardly more than touched, does not begin to match the potentiality of the state's coal and shale.

The possibilities of titanium iron deposits also are immense, according to the geologist. He added that Wyoming had the greatest water power potentiality of any state between Wyoming and the Atlantic with the single exception of New York state.

Artists Reclaim Old School House

KENT, Conn., Sept. 5.—A little red school house, drowsing by a roadside here, has been recalled to life and action after a long period of idleness, and is serving as an art gallery. The summer colony here, including a number of men and women who are well known artists, took over the school house when the town consolidated its schools into a single plant, and now they are holding annual exhibitions of local work to the delight of thousands.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—In a series of experiments conducted at Shaw's ultra-violet rays, similar to those given in the treatment of rickets in plants to grow a third faster than usual. X-rays, also it was revealed re-

Refuses To Support Wife For 11 years; Gets Jail Sentence

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—Thomas Murphy, 35, classed as "as mean a man as ever came before" Magistrate Campbell, was sentenced to a year in jail after the magistrate had personally investigated conditions at the Murphy home on complaint of Murphy's wife.

After she had supported him for 11 years, during which he had not done a tap of work, he came home one night and broke up the furniture.
Mrs. Murphy thought that was too much.

Needy Americans Stranded In Paris

(International News Service)

PARIS, Sept. 5.—Summer time usually sees a slight increase in needy Americans in the French capital.
Eighteen persons were sent back to America and 72 others were taken care of in the month of June by the American Aid Society in Paris.
Cables were sent to their families for 16 Americans and 75 others were given food, 25 beds, 4 hospital care and 21 cash. Calls for help or information were made by 146 persons.

Beggars Form "Protective League"

(International News Service)

DENVER, Sept. 5.—The business of "mooching" has developed into either a fine art or a racket. Denver police are trying to determine which, after learning following a recent round up of beggars that they were averaging from twenty-five to forty dollars a day from non-suspecting altruists.

who were moved to pity by their misshapen or deficient bodies.

The beggars, according to police information, realize that they can stay but a short while in any single city if their business is to be a financial success. Consequently they have formed a regular route that they travel each year. Not only have they done this, but they have formed a "mutual protective league" which assures them of bond should they be jailed on vagrancy charge in any of the cities of the circuit.

Police received this astounding information from Chester Stein, 23 year old moocher whose home is in Detroit. Stein was arrested on the second day of his "stand" in Denver after making an average of four dollars an hour for his begging.

When he arrived at police headquarters he insisted that he should be allowed to communicate with his "manager," Ray B. Charles. A few moments after the latter received Stein's telephone call he pulled up in front of the police station in an eight cylinder sedan and immediately proceeded about the business of gaining Stein's release. After they informed officials as to the returns of the racket they were both released with the provision that they leave Denver remedy can always be the same.

Good old Castoria! There's comfort in every drop of this pure vegetable preparation, and not the slightest harm in its frequent use.
As often as Baby has a fretful spell, is feverish, or cries and can't diarrhea—a condition that should always be checked without delay.

Just keep Castoria handy, and give it promptly. Relief will follow very promptly; if it doesn't, you should call a physician.

All through babyhood, Castoria should be a mother's standby; and a wise mother does not change to

Science Harnesses New Microbe

(International News Service) MOSCOW, Sept. 5.—A new microbe has been harnessed by science in the fight against other microbes. The new one was discovered by Prof. Alexander Maltsev of the Malarial Institute at Omsk, Siberia, in bodies of female malarial mosquitoes. The new parasite, Prof. Maltsev said, renders female mosquitoes sterile, so that if science can breed the parasite in sufficient quantities and spread them out in mosquito breeding grounds, it will eventually cause the self-extinction of mosquitoes by preventing their reproduction.

The discovery was caused by Prof. Maltsev's investigation of the curious fact that though certain districts of Siberia used to be infested with malarial mosquitoes, they were disappearing without any anti-malaria campaign such as spraying oil on the swampy waters. He said he autopsied hundreds of the mosquitoes in this region and found 90 per cent of the females infected with the strange parasite which he succeeded in isolating. In the laboratory he then discovered that the females infected with the parasite did not reproduce while others did.

Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.—Psalm 119:105.

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL
The Bible says of itself, "The word of God is living, and active, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing even to the dividing of soul and spirit, of both joints and marrow, and quick to discern the thoughts and intents of the heart." This living, active power of God's word is seen in the transformation it wrought throughout Judah in the reformation inaugurated by the good king Josiah when he found the lost book in the temple, saw it in the sins of the nation, and immediately proceeded to bring himself and his nation into accord with its teachings. "And he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant which was found in the house of Jehovah. And the king stood by the pillar and made a covenant before Jehovah, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies, and his statutes, with all his heart, and with all his soul, and to confirm the words of the covenant that were written in this book; and all the people stood to the covenant." So, the reformation began in hearts convicted of sin by God's word, and resolved to bring everything in their personal and national life into accord with that word.

True Reform Inner and Spiritual. Thus it has been with every reformation that has blessed mankind. It has been born of God through his word, and has been first an inner spiritual awakening, whence it has wrought itself out into life and conduct.

We have gotten a mania for reform that violates both of these principles that characterized Josiah's reform.

We neither begin with the word of God nor proceed by seeking the renewal of the hearts of the people. We seek to reform by laying it on from the outside, instead of from within man's spirit. We seek to reform by legislation instead of by regeneration, and we fail because our misdeeds are first personal and spiritual before they become social. Men do not love their neighbors as themselves because they do not first love God with all their hearts. That is always the first and great commandment, and the other second and resultant therefrom.

Modern Idolatry. Of course, we do not worship the kind of idols the ungodly Manasseh left for his godly son Josiah to demolish. Our idolatry is not so crude and uncultured. But in its substitution of material things as the object of our devotion it is no less pagan; and in its determination to satisfy the fleshly nature it is no less lustful. From monotheists we have become money-theists, and such materialism is paganism notwithstanding its modern culture. It is just this Mammon worship that has brought up into the meshes of financial depression and unemployment. We have not sought first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and hence God has not added the things that make for prosperity.

All of the reforms we so sadly need to right the wrongs that distress and paralyze our social and industrial life would come now if we would but dig up the Book of God which we have permitted to become lost in the rubbish of our materialism, and let it be read and heeded by all classes. Through 35 centuries it has been God's road map of the ways not only to reform, but of power to make that reform effective and abiding. Through it now, as in the beginning, God says with creative authority, "Let there be light, love and life," and it is so!

(The international uniform lesson for Sept. 7 is II Kings 22: 23:1-3, 21-25; II Chronicles 34 and 35, the subject being "Josiah—A Royal Reformer," and the Golden Text, Psalm 119:105, "Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.")

Unearth Ancient Roman Citadel

(International News Service) REGENSBURG, Sept. 5.—An ancient Roman citadel, discovered in the course of erecting a dam on the Danube in the village of Steinkirchen has been completely laid bare.

It is of stone, some 75 yards long and 65 yards wide, and appears to have been built in the middle of the second century of the Christian era, and to have been abandoned and in part destroyed a century later.

Some 60 Roman graves have been discovered nearby, and not far from them is an urn burial place dating from the early Hallstatt period, about 1,100 B. C. Here twelve graves have already been opened.

The total acreage under crops and grass is 4,665,462 acres. Of this total there are 3,133,430 acres of arable land and 1,532,032 acres of permanent grass.

Slightly over 800,000 acres are sown with oats. That next most important crop from the standpoint of acreage, is turnips and Swedes, since nearly 400,000 acres are given over to growing turnips and Swedes. Rye-grass, clover and other rotation grasses are found on 1,500,000 acres.

Potatoes are grown on about 145,000 acres, while 111,924 acres are devoted to Scotland's barley crop. Slightly more than 50,000 acres produce the annual wheat crop. Rye is sown on 3,200 acres and beans on about the same acreage.

Small fruit is grown on 8,006 acres and 1,200 acres are covered with orchards.

PENNZOIL ETHYL GASOLINE

This high quality anti-knock gasoline is making friends here and making them fast. Users are unhesitatingly recommending Pennzoil Ethyl as the best anti-knock fuel they have ever used.

The base gasoline, to which the Ethyl fluid is added, is a product of the Pennzoil refineries—a good clean Pennsylvania gasoline in itself. That's why the use of Pennzoil Ethyl prevents gummy deposits and clogged carburetor screens.

Pennzoil Ethyl gives a big mileage return for your money, is quick starting, quick in pick-up, clean burning and is free from excessive quantities of gum—and above all, it delivers maximum power without a single knock.

With Pennzoil Ethyl you will have fewer carbon removals and valve grindings—to say nothing of the satisfaction of taking the steep grades and hills "in high" without the slightest murmur from the motor. One tankful will show you the difference. Look for the Pennzoil Ethyl sign.

Ben Franklin School Ready

Big Junior High On East Side Is Prepared For 1600 Pupils

SOME CHANGES IN FACULTY ROSTER

With but a single work day remaining before the opening of the term, Benjamin Franklin junior high school attaches today were hastily making a last minute checkup on arrangements for next Monday, when an army of 1,600 east side boys and girls will invade the school.

While the clerical forces in the office were striving to finish their pre-opening tasks, those in the janitorial end were hurrying their multitudinous duties to completion. By Monday everything will be in readiness, and a thoroughly renovated building will greet the pupils as they enter through the doors.

Principal Frank L. Burton made known the faculty changes for both the Ben Franklin and Trade school divisions. The Ben Franklin office also has jurisdiction over that branch of the school. New teachers listed this year and their subjects are as follows:

Miss Anna Webster, Latin; Miss Ruth Lewis, English and dramatics; Wesley Roberts, mathematics; Miss Margaret Guy, English and history; Miss Shirley Holbrook, geography; Emmett Gillespie, boys' physical education; Miss Helen Maloney, girls' physical education; Miss Ina Tucker, music and writing and Carlton Kurz, vocational drafting. Mr. Kurz will be the only new instructor in the Trade school.

Among the countless improvements made during the summer months was the cleaning and re-painting of the locker rooms. Both the girls' and boys' section have benefitted from the painter's brush while the newly cleaned walls look spic and span. Seats and floors in the auditorium have also been re-cleaned, and the gymnasium lines have been re-painted and the floor shellacked.

The school office estimates that nearly 300 pupils of different grade schools in the city will be present Monday to commence their junior high work.

Mail Order Love Cools

Girl From Alabama Coming To Chicago To Meet Intended Finds He Doesn't Resemble His Picture

By FRANK J. CIPRIANI
Central Press Staff Writer
CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—Love at first sight cooled at second sight so far as pretty Rose Lee May, Alabama farm maiden, was concerned, and now she's convinced that mail order romances aren't so hot.

Rose came to Chicago a short time ago, dressed in her Sunday finest, to meet the snappy "city fellow" who was to be her husband.

She was enthused. No more farm drudgery at Philcampbell, Ala., but bright lights, gay life and love. And her husband to be! What mattered it if his name was Smith, that there were several pages of Smiths in the telephone directory alone, and 500 per page? Didn't he wear sporty clothes, appear classy and seem to have "it"? No, Mrs. So-and-so Smith wouldn't seem so bad, after all, thought Rose.

Fascinating Picture

To Rose, So-and-so Smith was a picture—literally. Smith, a practical individual, had advertised for a wife in a matrimonial magazine. They had exchanged photographs, as well as letters, and Smith's picture fascinated the Alabama belle. His clothes, too, caught her fancy. The mail order romance, flourished and recently Smith forwarded her bus fare.

So Rose came to Chicago to meet her mail order beloved. What she saw sent her walking down the street, in her Sunday finest, suitcase in hand, considerably disappointed.

A police squad came upon her and because of the early hour—2 a. m.—took her to the nearest station. There she told her story.

Her romance started July 8, when she answered Smith's ad for a wife. The first letter was normal. The second was slightly more torrid, and considerably embellished with "dears" and "darlings." More letters, then bus fare, and the arrival. Then disillusionment.

"Ordinary Looking"

"Why, he wasn't even good looking at all," complained Rose, ruefully. "He's just an ordinary looking fellow who doesn't know enough to have his hair cut when he's going to meet the girl he promised to marry. An' he doesn't look like his picture!"

Smith, a plain appearing fellow, far from sporty, was questioned by detectives and, with his Alabama girl, brought before Judge Elliot. The story was related, and the court indicated that if Smith paid Rose's fare back home, the matter would be dropped.

Work Progresses On Butler Ave.

Sewer Being Built To Take Care Of Surface Water On Street

BEAUTY SPOT IS PLANNED AT CORNER

With present weather continuing, concrete pouring should be started on Butler avenue inside of ten days, according to Henry Golder of the firm of Woods and Golder, in charge of the work.

When the old paving was removed it was found that the sewer running down Butler avenue was in bad shape and it was decided to install 24 inch concrete sewer pipes. This work has been going on and is nearly completed. The grading will also be completed within a few days.

When the paving of Butler avenue is finished, and the new Epworth M. E. church is completed this will be one of the show spots of the city. A thirty foot roadway is being cut through the point of the property fronting the church, which will provide access to Butler avenue from Washington street without going to the intersection. This will leave a triangular piece of ground about fifty feet on a side, which can be planted with grass or with plants and made an island of beauty.

Save The First Molars As They're Permanent

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

No child should be permitted to enter school until a complete examination of the teeth is made. No child can be entirely efficient with a bad mouth.

One of my pet hobbies is saving the first molars to come in. The problem is far more complicated than might appear to be on the surface.

If you will look in a group of adult mouths, it is ten to one that if any tooth has been pulled it is one of the first grinders or molars, usually on the lower jaw, about half way back. It is surprising to look into a dozen or more adult mouths and find how many have one of these teeth out.

The sequence of events which leads up to this condition is nearly always the same in every case. These first molars are the first permanent teeth to come in. They usually come in before any of the temporary teeth have fallen out. The average age when the first permanent molars come in is about six years. The average age at which the first milk teeth (the two front ones) are lost is about seven years.

For this reason it is perfectly natural for everyone to assume that until the front milk teeth drop out, all the teeth in the child's head are temporary. Now the first permanent teeth are comparatively soft. They easily get decayed. When they do everyone says, "Oh! they are only milk teeth anyway. No use bothering about them. Pull them out or let them stay. They will be replaced by permanent ones soon."

So the caries (or decay) is allowed to go on until the tooth is destroyed and then has to be pulled out. But no new one comes in to take its place. And since the first molar is one of the most important of all teeth to preserve the arch of the jaw, a great deal of future trouble is in store for the poor child who loses

They found several mail bags but most important of all the news they brought from the depths was the report that they had penetrated to within dynamiting distance of the purser's strong box containing money and gold and silver bars variously estimated to be valued at from $2,000,000 to $8,000,000.

IT'S A KNOCK-OUT!

Bo Broadway
by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

By Central Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—More than one hundred noble citizens sent word to the Municipal Employment Bureau that if the jobless women, storming the place, really wanted work they'd give them an opportunity to cook, wash, iron, wait on table, sweep, dust, do the mending, look after the kids and make themselves otherwise generally useful, for $50 a month, room and board.

Strange to say, the women turned up their little noses at the offer. Skilled laborers beg for a chance to do any kind of work that will bring them an assured income. They don't seem to care how menial the job is.

But not the women. One of them who said all she knew how to do was paste labels on bottles said she'd like to see herself take a job as kitchen mechanic! Who'd devil did they think they were talkin' to?

Somebody evidently told her that heaven would protect the workin' gals—and she believed it.

ETIQUETTE LESSON.
The editor, of course, gives the conventional reply, which is not in the least enlightening.

The real answer is this: If you are acquainted with the woman or are traveling with her, extend your strong right arm, assist her to the platform and let her ascend the steps, you bringing up the rear.

If you are not acquainted with the woman, extend your strong right arm in the same fashion; but instead of assisting her to the platform, jab her in the ribs with your elbow, climb to the platform, rush up the steps, take epoch-making idea, has not received the attention it deserves.

It's the same old story of genius, thwarted and ridiculed. A man of less vision, a man to whom The Dream loomed less distinct, might have curled up, like a caterpillar on a hot stone, under the storm of skepticism and mockery that greeted his outlining of the great innovation.

I've often said—I still say it—the world does not know its greatest men.

Charred Body Is Found In Ruins Of Bombed House

Pittsburgh Man Reported Missing, Tentatively Identified As Victim

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—Discovery today of a mutilated, charred body in the ruins of the frame house which was wrecked by two terrific explosions early yesterday morning, led police to believe the building had been blown up to cover a murder.
Residents of the neighborhood tentatively identified the body as that of John Skiroe, 35, an ice man and furniture dealer. Police this afternoon were continuing to search the ruins in hopes of finding the body of an unidentified youth who accompanied Skiroe when he left his home at two a. m. yesterday morning.
Skiroe's wife asked police to search for her husband this morning after he had failed to return home last night. Police searched the wrecked structure and found the body.
Police this afternoon said they believed the victim may have been lured into the empty dwelling by blackmailers and murdered. He was said to have had considerable money on his person.
The house was wrecked by two blasts and a fire early yesterday morning. Two neighboring homes were damaged and 24 residents in nearby dwellings were forced to flee to the street.
Mike Lauletto, owner of the house, at first told police he knew of no reason for the explosions, but later told of receiving several threatening letters.

Over 74,000 War Veterans Apply For Allowances

Great Host Seeks Benefits Under Recent Pension Legislation

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—More than 74,000 world war veterans have already made application for disability allowances under the pension legislation enacted by the last congress, a compilation of reports from regional offices of the veterans administration disclosed today.
With the new law effective but a brief period, the manner in which applications now are pouring in has convinced veterans administration officials they will receive several hundred thousand applications before the first of the year.

Actual award of disability allowances, or pensions, is proceeding slowly, but 424 had actually been allowed up to August 1, most of these to men in hospitals, suffering from known disability.

The influx of applications has been followed keenly by veterans administration officials, who had estimated to congress that 156,000 veterans would be benefitted by the act during its first year of operation. It is expected that applications will far exceed the number of claims actually allowed.
Under the policy of Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the veterans organization, final allowance of pensions will cover a period of several months. No increase has been made in the veterans administration force to provide for speedy examinations of applicants.

Skeleton Of 'Dinosaur' Proves To Be Hay-Rake

When a party of scientists make a long journey to investigate the skeleton of a dinosaur, and find an abandoned hay-making machine, it would seem that someone had blundered.

This is what happened recently in North Africa, when the skeleton of a "dinosaur" was found near Tetuan. The find made rather a stir, because the original investigators thought that the "ribs" of the prehistoric reptile pointed to its being a species previously known only in North America.

The North American was a shrewd guess, for the ribs now turn out to be the curved iron teeth of the automatic rakes of a Canadian hay-making machine. Apparently it had been abandoned by a Spanish farmer during the first war, and then covered up by a landslide.

But the error was pardonable—a hay-making machine does look rather like a dinosaur skeleton, especially when it is partly covered with sand. And other machines might pass, after being abandoned for some years, for still more fearsome monsters. So that perhaps, thousands of years after this, scientists, unassuming the relics of our civilization, will conclude that the globe was peopled in the twentieth century, with all sorts of giant animals, far more terrifying than any of our prehistoric ancestors knew.—London Answers.

Florist Raises Green Gladioli

(International News Service)

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 5.—Spencer Coe finally has succeeded in raising green gladioli. Natives rubbed their eyes at first and became assured when Mr. Coe explained florists have been struggling for 20 years to attain such a goal. He has half a dozen bulbs and expects to continue the work.

Fame comes slowly to artists. Only time can fade a picture so that nobody can tell how it looked when new.

New Auto License Colors For 35 States

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Thirty-five states will change the color combination for automobile license plates in 1931 and twenty-six different motifs will be used throughout the country, indicating that almost every hue will be represented in next year's parade, according to a survey by the American Automobile Association.

There were thirty-one States to change the color combination in 1931 and a total of sixteen different motifs were used. The national motoring body pointed out that eleven States and the District of Columbia will retain the 1930 colors, reversing them as to background and lettering, indicating a trend away from standardization of colors noted in 1930. A total of thirteen States and the District of Columbia retained the 1929 combinations last year. Missouri and Oregon are the only two states yet to select colors for the 1931 plates.

The A. A. A. survey reveals that first rank will be divided between two color combinations, with white on black and white on green each being adopted by five states. These color schemes will therefore predominate in 1931, with white on black retaining its 1929 position. Black on orange and yellow on black were also leaders last year.

Kaiser's Kin In Financial Trouble

(International News Service)
BERLIN, Sept. 5.—Duchess Maria Dorothea von Schleswig-Holstein, sister-in-law of William II, former kaiser of Germany, is in such financial difficulties that a part of her estate is to be sold by the sheriff at auction in November.
The duchess is a sister of the late kaiserin. It is recalled that Princess Victoria, sister of the former kaiser, died in poverty after she had lost her fortune following her marriage to Alexander Zoubkoff, Russian emigre. Among the objects to be auctioned off are two farms, large tracts of farmland and a brick plant, all situated in Silesia.

Special Deer Licenses Have Been Authorized If They Become Necessary

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—Game commission officials have authorized the manufacture of 119,999 special deer licenses to be held in readiness in case conditions warrant an open doe season in some sections of the state.

Of the total number ordered 99,999 will be paid licenses costing $2 each, while 20,000 will be free to land owners who may wish to hunt for doe deer on their own property.

Although the licenses have been ordered to be ready in case of need, no formal action toward opening any counties or parts of counties will be taken by the commission prior to its October meeting.
In accordance with a former ruling of the commission, townships will be opened to doe shooting only upon receipt of petitions bearing at least 25 signatures of bona fide residents there. To open an entire county at least 10 signatures from a majority of the townships will be necessary.
Should the commission decide to open any section for doe shooting, a legal notice to that effect will be printed in two local newspapers, once a week for three consecutive weeks.
Applications for the special licenses should not be made prior to formal action opening counties as they will be good only in one county. Before

American Ways Gain Headway In Sweden

Even Typical Slang Yankee Phrases Are Heard In Stockholm Streets

The gradual Americanization of Sweden is noticeable everywhere in the country, but is most pronounced in Stockholm. The citizens of the capital like American novels, magazines, dramas, musical comedies and, especially, motion pictures.

The advent of the "talkies" had a distinct effect upon the everyday language, and such typical American slang phrases as "All right, kid," "O. K.," "Hello, baby," "So long" or "Howdy" are heard frequently.
Daily life also is influenced by American habits in foods and clothing. Grapefruit and orange juice are served for breakfast, while "hot dogs" are sold all over the city. Shoe shine parlors are springing up in many places and even American soda fountains are found here and there.

American suits and hats, toilet preparations, office appliances, automobiles, chewing gum and cigarettes find increasing numbers of buyers, while records of Broadway melodies are played in homes and music stores. Even Rotary clubs have been started in several cities.

Electric Wires Feared As 'Deadly' In 1889

Newspapers Published Warnings And In Cleveland Foremen Slashed The Lines

"Now that the deadly electric wires are soon to be strung about the streets of North East, we think it our duty to warn the people as to their dangerous character," said an article in the North East (Pa.) Sun on December 14, 1889.

Deaths from the wires are becoming frequent. The leading papers of the country are warning people of this great danger. As soon as electric lights are in operation it will be dangerous to touch a wire of any kind, or even a metal substance, in the borough. A man ringing a doorbell might be struck dead at any instant.

"The citizens of Cleveland became alarmed at the dangerous character of the electric light wires, and the fire department mustered a large force of men and during one whole day cut and slashed the wires in every direction. Scores of telegraph and telephone wires were sacrificed to the public safety. Great crowds congregated on the streets and cheered the linemen as wire after wire was cut."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Supreme Court will have an opportunity this fall to decide whether the automobile "back-seat driver" is legally bound to warn the man at the wheel of impending dangers.
Among the great number of cases piled up during the summer recess of the court is one brought by insurance companies seeking to escape liability for damage in accidents which they believe might have been averted by automobile passengers.
The court will be asked to determine whether death from sunstroke renders an insurance company liable under an accident policy and whether blood poisoning, caused by the removal of a hair from the nose is accidental death.

17. Nathanael Green—The Fall Of Forts Washington And Lee

WHEN WASHINGTON RETIRED FROM HIS POSITIONS AT HARLEM HEIGHTS AND SET OUT WITH HIS ARMY FOR WHITE PLAINS, HE LEFT NATHANAEL GREENE WITH SOME 5,000 MEN TO GUARD FORTS LEE AND WASHINGTON WHICH COMMANDED THE HUDSON.

NOV. 16, 1776, A GREAT FORCE OF BRITISH AND HESSIANS ADVANCED TO STORM FORT WASHINGTON, WHILE A BRITISH FLEET IN THE HUDSON COMBATED THE AMERICAN STRONGHOLD. THE FORT WAS QUICKLY SURROUNDED AND ALL AVENUES OF ESCAPE CLOSED.

THE GARRISON FOUGHT DESPERATELY AGAINST OVERWHELMING ODDS, BUT WAS FORCED TO SURRENDER WHEN THE ENEMY CARRIED THE OUTER DEFENSES. IN THIS DISASTER THE AMERICANS LOST 3,000 MEN (KILLED, WOUNDED AND CAPTURED).

FOUR DAYS LATER, CORNWALLIS, WITH A LARGE BRITISH FORCE, SCALED THE PALISADES AND SWOOPED DOWN UPON FORT LEE. GREENE WAS WARNED JUST BEFORE THE ATTACK AND, HASTILY ABANDONING THE FORT, MARCHED SWIFTLY WITH THE GARRISON TO JOIN WASHINGTON AT HACKENSACK.

Ready To Name Team To Represent Country In Big Polo Matches

United States Polo Team Looks Fit To Take Measure Of British Invaders

Naming Of Team For International Match Is No Easy Task For Officials

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Less than twenty-four hours before the curtain will rise on the exciting drama of a great international polo match, the polo teams of America and Great Britain will be named tonight, thus bringing to a climax a period of surprise and speculation that has intrigued the public no end. The public is very anxious to know Thomas Hitchcock's mind, wherein it differs very little from that of the British. It has taken him over a month to find out that he doesn't know what he is going to do. The fault isn't Hitchcock's. It is that of candidates for one of the "up forward" positions on the American team. They play excellent polo but not when playing with Mr. Hitchcock, which is dubious taste.

Will Name Team.
It all doubtless will end with the young man and his polo committee naming the team they have had in mind from the first. Eric Pedley at No. 1; Earle Hopping, Jr., at No. 2; Hitchcock himself at No. 3 and Winston Guest at back. I surmise that there have been better teams than this playing polo in the name of America and I know there have been worse.

The British, almost as surely, will name Gerald Balding, at No. 1; Lewis Lacey, at No. 2; C. T. I. Roark at No. 3 and Humphrey Guinness at back. They are almost obligated to do this, because these four men happened to be on the field the only time the British have looked the part of real polo team so far. They have had tragic handicaps in the illness of Aidan Roark and Captain George and too little practice, both here and abroad. The Americans, it seems, have had too much.

Unbeatable two weeks ago, they appear to have left much of their polo on the practice fields of Sands Point and Piping Rock and, if there is anything that can give the riddled and uncertain invaders a fighting chance, it is the possibility that the Americans got much too good much too soon.

Pedley Likes Stride.
They apparently couldn't lose two weeks ago, so they became panicky and something and worked themselves into exhaustion. Consequently, Pedley, who had been hitting eight to ten goals a match, suddenly lost his touch under the posts and, since the American system of scoring is predicated on his ability to convert the long driving of his backfield into points, the efficiency of the team fell off accordingly. However, Pedley's disquieting lapse may be due as much as anything else to the ceaseless interchange of candidates for the position immediately behind him at No. 2.

Hopping was the original choice but two bruising falls during test matches operated against his natural development and now the young man, instead of being consistent, is merely perverse. He seems to play first class polo only when a member of the second team. However, he has the only thing that the others palpably lack, big game experience, and this ought to be enough to get him the place. His only rivals are Cecil Smith, whose act is unspiced dependability, and Rube Williams, who is ultra-zealous. Neither tendency is particularly attractive. Elmer Boeseke, for reasons never made clear to the lay mind, seems to have been distanced long since.

British Undecided.
The British have a problem equally pressing but quite dissimilar. If the Americans have too many candidates, the British have too few. They came over here with two No. 1 men and both of them promptly fell ill. In the emergency, they had to do the best they could, which was to requisition "Barney" Balding, an Anglican living in America. He did well in practice but not well enough, so they had to move his brother, Gerald, forward to No. 1 and let Guinness have a whirl at back. The result is that "Pat" Roark is the only member of the original team who is likely to play in his accustomed position.

Thus, we have two polo teams ready to take the field tomorrow, knowing a great deal about each other but very little about themselves. A nice time should be had by all.

All farmers are up against it, and those that have begun to keep bees will get stung in the end.

Wampum Trims Spencers, 12-8

Wampum Team Evens Up Series For Mercantile League Title By Victory

The Wampum team evened up the series for the Mercantile league, mashing the Spencers last night at the Lehigh Field, when they dusted off the Spencers team 12 to 8. The Spencers won the first game. The winner of the next game played takes the honors.

The game was quite ragged last night for championship play, eleven errors being chalked up, four by Wampum and seven by the Spencers. Patterson limited the Spencers to eleven hits and Llewellyn did likewise to the Wampum team. Aiello and Fahey had the only extra-base blows of the game. Quite a large crowd witnessed the game.

Wampum had one big inning, the fourth when they secured five runs and took a commanding lead. The third game will be played early next week.

High Grid Squad Finishing Camp Training Work

Candidates Will Return To City Tomorrow—Scrimmages Start

LINEUP OF TEAM IS NOT CERTAIN

The New Castle High School 1930 grid candidates who are enjoying one week of fall training at Muddy Creek were sent through a light scrimmage on Thursday afternoon.

The boys have only a few more days left before coming back here and they will probably be sent through scrimmages for the remainder of the week. Following the usual exercises the candidates practiced running down punts. Running down punts and tackling constituted the workout on Thursday morning.

Thursday's rehearsal also constituted of signal drills and tackling. The head coach and his assistants, William L. Klee and "Cip" Thomas feel that the grid squad should be in fair condition when they come back to New Castle to start their daily grind at Taggart Field in preparation for the inaugural game of the season. Just who will make up the team this season is not known. At the present time there are 11 posts on the first team open with no gridders having any position cinched. Next week at Taggart Field the boys will be fighting hard for first place berths. The candidates are working hard now at camp.

New Castle Indies Defeat Highland In Series Game

Jimmy DiMuccio Hurls Fine Three-Hit Game To Give Indies 4 To 1 Victory

The New Castle Indies finished ahead of the North Highland team 4 to 1, in a five inning game last night at the North Highland Field. This was the first game of a five game series for the chance to be the contenders for the Independent title of New Castle.

Jimmy DiMuccio, manager of the Indies went to the mound and turned in a beautiful exhibition of pitching, allowing but three hits and fanning four men. Sargent on the rubber for Highland was found for six hits and fanned eight men.

DiMuccio received excellent support from his team-mates. F. Ross, Scaglione, and DiMuccio helped the Indies to win by their timely hitting, while McClusky and Lamm led the Highland team at bat.

The next game of the series will be played at Centennial Field at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Five Backfield Veterans Form Nucleus For Titan Team

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Sept. 5.—With five men with varsity experience as a nucleus for his ball-carrying section, Coach "Dike" Beed of the Westminster College football team is faced with the problem of developing backfield from freshman material to replace veterans in case of injury. A number of new men, however, look good and may force the experienced players to the limit for regular backfield berths.

The five veterans are: Harry Michaels, Turtle Creek, quarterback on last year's team; Robert Deacle, Sharpville, who was developed into a good fullback last year; Ben Haldy, Bentleyville, a halfback; Sam Merriman, Turtle Creek, a substitute quarterback; and James Perrin, Avella, a hard-hitting substitute halfback who has had high school experience as fullback.

Spying On Sports

By WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Writer
SEPTEMBER, gliding by on golden feet, brings the final three phases of the baseball season: the winning of the pennants, the playing of the world series and the selection of "all teams," a business borrowed from baseball's autumnal ritual, football.

Perhaps reference to the selection of "all" teams should have been placed first as a perusal of the public prints reveals that already a number of sages connected with the national pastime have begun naming their star teams.

One of these is Mr. Roger Peckinpaugh, head man of the Cleveland Indians. Mr. Peckinpaugh has picked a pretty good team and has shown a great deal of modesty in so doing as he named only two Indians while three places each are awarded the Athletics and Yankees.

Peck's all-star All-American league outfit includes: Mickey Cochran, Athletics, catcher; Lefty Grove, Athletics, and Wesley Ferrell, Indians, pitcher; Lou Gehrig, Yankees, first base; Charley Gehringer, Tigers, second; Joe Cronin, Senators, shortstop; Tony Lazzeri, Yankees, third; Al Simmons, Athletics; Babe Ruth, Yankees, and Earl Averill, Indians, outfielders.

This department can suggest but one change in that line: Ralph Kress, St. Louis Browns, in place of Cronin at short.
Peckinpaugh believes that aggregation would give a picked National league outfit all the opposition it could possibly want. And he doesn't

Bout Called Off As Fans Shower Negro Fighters

Debris Shower By Fans Stops Colored Bout For Title In New York City

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—They wrote a new one in fight record books today.

"Bout called no contest by referee in ninth round because fans threw so much debris into ring boxers could not continue."

And that was what actually happened here last night in Queensboro stadium in the bout for the colored middleweight championship between Harry Smith, New York, and Gorilla Jones, Akron, O. The spectators literally made the decision by throwing so many cigar butts, fans, programs, ice cream bricks and pennies into the ring that referee Jack Dorman was forced to stop the battle.

"I really thought both boys were doing their best but the ring was in such condition the fight could not continue," said Dorman today.

The crowd became impatient at the outset when the first round was marked by considerable wrestling and the jeers increased as little action developed. Smith had the edge in all but two rounds. Jones injured his hand in the sixth and offered little opposition after that.

Purses of both fighters were held up pending an investigation.
The gate was estimated at $10,000.

Cardinals Move Toward Lead In National League

Chicago Cubs Have Four Game Lead, But Giants And Dodgers Will Bother Them

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—When Gabby Hartnett pinballed that homer in the tenth inning he not only won for Chicago Cubs over the Pirates 10 to 7, but it looked today as though he might have clinched the pennant. For the win increased the Cubs' advantage in the National mill to four and one half games, which at this late date, is a fairly healthy bank account.

Grant the Bruins an even break in the forthcoming series with the Giants and Robins, it doesn't seem hardly in the deck that either the Giants or Cardinals can ease them out of the title. Rogers Hornsby returned to the lists yesterday and he may prove just what the doctor ordered. However, some folks say he is through and they may be correct, as Hajah did not get a hit.

Cards Move Up
Those St. Louis Cardinals still insist on being taken seriously and moved into a tie with the Giants for second place as they downed the Reds, 13 to 2. The Redbirds scored eight runs in the sixth and retired Larry Benton.

Tom Zachary and Rabbit Maranville, a couple of Boston kids, undid the Giants 7 to 1. New York's nine clouts were widely parked and Maranville was the central figure in four double plays.

Al Simmons drove in his sixth run of the contest and won in the 15th inning for the A's over the Ruddy Sox of Boston. It was Lefty Grove's second win in two days and hopped his season total to 24. The score was 8 to 7.

The jinx held by the Senators over the Yankees was strong enough to triumph over 11 strike-outs by Henry Johnson and Washington snatched it, 3 to 2. Singles by Rice, Cronin and Judge won the game in the eighth inning.

Only three hits off Willis Hudlin and a homer by Bob Seeds ruined the White Sox, Cleveland mowing out, 3 to 2.

Vic Sorrell gave the Brownies nine hits and walked six, but Detroit struggled along and finally black-boarded it 8 to 4.

Thompson-Freeman Fight Tonight In Cleveland Ring

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—Young Jack Thompson of Los Angeles, will slide in between the ropes at Old League Park here tonight wearing the world's welterweight championship crown, but whether he can get out the same way he got in with the crown still perched on his head is a cat of a different color.

I all depends, for there is a young fellow named Tommy Freeman of Erie, Pa., and Cleveland, who Thompson has to see about it. Freeman, it seems, has entered some objections to Thompson's right to wear the crown, and the matter will be settled tonight as quickly as possible.

Scarazzo-Mahonings Will Play Tonight

The second game of the series for the Independent title of New Castle will be played tonight at Centennial Field, by the Scarazzos and the Mahonings. A. A. it was announced today. The game starts at 5:30 o'clock.

The telephone company took a man's phone out the other day. Central said the receiver happened to be off the hook while he was hunting for his collar button.

What sort of National league team might give this crowd a real battle? Here's a guess:
Gabby Hartnett, Cubs, and Alfonso Lopez, Robins, catchers; Remy Krenmer, Pirates; Fred Fitzsimmons, Giants; Guy Bush, Cubs; Ray Phelps, Robins; Pat Malone, Cubs; pitchers: Bill Terry, Cardinals, first base; Frankie Frisch, Cardinals, second base; Travis Jackson, Giants, shortstop; Fred Lindstrom, Giants, third, and Elwood English, Cubs, utility infielder; Hack Wilson, Cubs; Chuck Klein, Phillies; Kiki Cuyler, Cubs, outfielders, and Lefty O'Doul, Phillies, utility outfielder.

The American league would have a big edge behind the bat and in the pitcher's box. The National would have by far the best infield. The outfield and hitting strength of the two teams would be about even. Managers? Connie Mack and Joe McCarthy, of course.

The series would probably go the seven full games and with each one a red-hot battle, too!

ROGERS HORNSBY

FORBES FIELD, PITTSBURGH, Sept. 5.—Gaby Hartnett crashed the apple over the fence in the tenth inning yesterday to give the Chicago Cubs a 10 to 7 victory over the Pirates.

The Pirates tied the game up in the ninth with a run and in the first half of the tenth Hartnett hit his circuit breaker that cleaned the bases better than a janitor.

Bush, Petty and Malone pitched for the Cubs, while Manager Ens used Charley Wood, French and Swetonic, the latter being charged with the defeat.

Kremer Proves Tower Of Strength For Faltering Buccaneers

By JACK SORDS
Central Press Sports Artist.

While passing out the laurel wreaths to baseball heroes of the current season one should not overlook that hard-working, steady curve merchant known to the diamond business as Remy Kremer, but to Pittsburgh fans as Wiz or Ray.

Kremer has been one of the steadfast fingers in the National league this year. During the dark days when the Pirates were floundering around in a slump that threatened to bury them in the second division, Kremer was as dependable as a 21-jewel watch.

Despite his 17 years in baseball Kremer seems destined to be one of the very few National league hurlers who will finish with 20 or more wins this year. With a fourth-place club back of him that's a sizeable achievement.

It was Kremer's steady work on the mound that held the Pirates up when they were on the slide. Now that the Buccaneers have perked up again and are playing better ball, Remy is one tough baby to beat.

Indies To Play Fast Brent Team

Saturday afternoon at Centennial Field, the New Castle Indies will play the strong Brent baseball team. The game starts at 3 o'clock. This is a return game to the one played at Brent in which the Coal Miners hammered out an 8 to 2 victory.

The locals hope to even up the score Saturday, and will send their mound ace Tony "Buck" Panella to the rubber. A large crowd will no doubt see this game. Manager DIMUCCIO is confident his team can take the measure of the Brentites.

Rajah Hornsby is to be traded again. That is, everybody knows about it but the Cubs.

Baseball's Old Man River
The Rajah's worked in many towns. He's played with many clubs—The Cards, the Giants, the Boston Clowns.

And now he's with the Cubs. When Hornsby was a beardless youth to play ball was his plan. But trades have changed all this, for sooth.

He's just a traveling man!

Last year Hornsby was the pennant hero of the Cubs. He had everything and proved it.

This season, however, the Rajah, has been about as useful to the Chicagoans as a pair of oars to a camel.

The trouble with the Raj is that his spirit is willing but his feet are weak. Whenever his soul cries for baseball his legs sash him back.

Though Hornsby is a couple feet short now of being a baseball star, he gets a 100 per cent salary.

That fact has kept other clubs from grabbing him. They could use that bat of his for more than just photographic purposes.

Lehigh-Lockleys Battling Tonight

Tonight up on the Lehigh Field, the Lehigh Cement mullball team will be battling with their backs to the wall for the second game of the series with the Lockleys. The Lockleys came through a victory on Wednesday night that gave them 1 up on the Cement boys in the series to decide the Industrial League title.

Manager Howard Reed is confident that his gang can take the measure of the Lehigh boys again tonight and clinch the series, while Manager Gus Thompson feels that the Lehigh players are going to wallopp the Lockleys. A good game is expected. Reed will no doubt send "Hap" Rogers to the mound tonight, while Thompson will have Rich in shape for the important game. The Lockleys have defeated the Lehigh twice straight and Thompson thinks that he has gone far enough and has instructed his ball players to go out and hit at everything tonight.

The game starts at 6 o'clock.

Stray Dogs To Be Given New Home

Howling Canines Keep West Enders From Peaceful Slumbers

ELLWOOD CITY, Sept. 5.—Noise made by distressed canines at night who are locked up at the dog pound at West End, Ellwood, annoy the neighbors who insist that they prefer static from radio.

It was decided by the borough fathers that a new home should be built for the dogs, near to the incinerator or possibly the sewage disposal plant.

Ellwood is fortunate in having a kind-hearted dog catcher, who hates to kill dogs, but councilmen believe that this has its bad as well as good points.

The matter was placed in the hands of the city commissioner, Monroe and W. A. Kerr with power to act.

Mrs. Hazel Gill of Wampum avenue was a New Castle visitor yesterday.

The matter was referred to the police committee and burgess with power to act.

The Decision

The court held for the two men. The judges reasoned thus:
The boat was in danger of being carried out to sea and two men removed it onto the resort's property to save it for its lawful owner. In such a case a prudent rule is always good—that an entry upon land to save goods from being destroyed is not trespass.

Car Belonging To Missing Bank Clerk Is Bullet Riddled

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—That the dreaded "3-X" maniac killer, may be at work again was regarded as a possibility today, following the finding of a car of William Luckhardt, bank clerk, with the windshield shattered in two places.
The car was found east of Mincola and Miss Irma Roever said she last saw the bank clerk early Thursday morning when he left her home for his residence in Richmond Hill, Queens. Luckhardt failed to report for work Thursday.
The "3-X" killer shot two men as they sat in parked automobiles with girl friends in the Queens section.

NEW YORK STOCKS Push Upward Today

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The sea-saw swing of prices carried most of the active industrial stocks to higher levels in the early trading today. The favorites which were under the fire of the bears at Thursday's close staged a mild come-back, under the lead of Big Steel. Worthington Pump and the Amusements. The Mercantile stocks were also in the lime-light, but the Rubber stocks continued their downward course, Goodyear declining to the year's lowest price, at 50. A better tone in the Grain and Cotton markets, firming up of wholesale gasoline prices and some evidence of improvement in business helped along the rally in industrial stocks. United States Steel pushed ahead to 169½ for a 2 point gain over yesterday's close. Rallies of a point or more were recorded in Radio, Radio Keith, Loews, General Electric, Case, Auburn Auto and other favorites. Columbia Graphophone continued as the favorite of the low-priced specialties and sold above 18 for a gain of 1½ points. Houston Oil jumped 3 points to 77½ in active trading. The Ralls and Utilities were lagging, while the Coppers showed a tendency to rally.
Buying of high grade bonds was again reflected in slight forward movement of prices. French Government and French Cities' bonds also set up a new price peak. Call money was unchanged at 2½ per cent.

Request Argentine President Resign

President Hipolito Irigoyen Is Asked To Resign By Cabinet Ministers

CRISIS REACHED IN POLITICAL ROW

(International News Service)
BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 5.—The political situation in the Argentine reached a crisis today when the cabinet ministers in a body confronted President Hipolito Irigoyen with a request that he resign, it was learned from a reliable source.
The president, it was reported, met his ministers in the presidential palace and was seceded with them most of the night. He listened to their pleadings quietly and did not utter a word until the spokesmen presenting the demand for his resignation had finished.
Then, according to authentic information, he requested a status quo until Monday, which was agreed to. It was understood that the ministers served an ultimatum threatening to resign at once unless he acceded to their request to relinquish government control. This, it was felt, would precipitate a major upheaval. While the cabinet was in secret session with the president, scattered shots and minor disturbances echoed through various parts of the city.

In a clash between students and alleged political gangsters one student was killed and many injured. The riot, participated in by several thousand students, took place on Avenida Mayo, Buenos Aires' smartest thoroughfare.
The total calculated death toll after a night hectic with minor disturbances and shootings in all parts of the city had mounted to four by morning. Twenty were known to have suffered wounds.
Military patrols were scattered throughout the city.

THE FISH WAS THERE
The family was seated at the table with a guest who was a business acquaintance of dad's, all ready to enjoy the meal, when the 5 year old son blurted out, "Why, mother, this is roast beef."
"Yes," answered the mother, "what of it?"
"Well, pop said this morning that he was going to bring that big fish home for dinner tonight."—The Path-finder.
Last year's crime bill, according to Mr. Coolidge, was $7,500,000,000. However, that was a bit of crime to show for it.—The Detroit News.

ROAMING

With Richards

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle.

For the past six weeks it has been a stock alibi for all of us to blame the drought for poor flowers, poor tomatoes, in fact everything that wasn't right was laid against the back door of the drought. And in the case of farmers with large acreage under cultivation this was a good alibi for you can't be carrying a sprinkling can over 50 acres of corn.

But there is beginning to be a little suspicion that the amateur gardener with a yard a little larger than a table cloth, is just stalling when he blames the drought for the failure of his half a dozen plants to come to any fruition. For the amateur gardener who wanted, beat the drought.

Had another treat last night visiting the garden of Mrs. William C. Kennedy up on Neshannock avenue. To look at this garden one might imagine that the summer had been just right, that there was no lack of water, and that there were no hand-caps to overcome. Now it didn't rain on Neshannock avenue any more than it did on any other street in the city but the garden of Mrs. Kennedy doesn't show it.

It too runs to old fashioned flowers, with blotches of color here and there that give it the appearance of one of those rare old crazy quilts your Aunt Tabitha used to make. Marigolds so yellow that they seem to have captured the rays of the sun. Zinnias, great large fellows, monthly roses that seem to forget that this is September, and a lot of dahlias.

The Kennedy dahlias are not just ordinary dahlias. Some of them, the Jane Cowl variety in particular, look as though someone had carved up a head of cabbage and painted it a delicate gold tint. If Jane Cowl, that delightful little star of "Smilin' Through" and a number of other productions, could see the dahlia named for her, she would certainly be proud of it.

Up in the middle of the garden Queen Anne's Lace is flirting with a lot of rakish bachelor buttons, while here and there are pom pom dahlias, those cute little tikes that can be worn as buttonholes. Over on the other side of the yard is some gentian, up at the back end are some native evergreens from the hillsides of Lawrence county, while guarding the very end of the garden is a dark forest that acts like a curtain against which the color of the garden is thrown.
If you know the north side of Neshannock avenue you know that the ground rises sharply which means that to garden a lot out there you have to be a member in good standing of the Alpine Climbers Union. But despite mountainous terrain, long weary hours and the necessity of carrying water to the plants, there it is, a picture if there ever was one, and a contradiction to the lad who claims his flowers were ruined because of no water.

Mexican National Guard Reorganized

(International News Service)
MEXICO CITY, Mex., Sept. 5.—As the nucleus of a Mexican national guard a presidential decree has ordered all armed forces in the various states of the republic to come under the direct command of the military chiefs of each state.
Marine guards, police, traffic officers and agrarian police units will all be placed under the military chiefs and subject to the same service call in time of stress that national guardsmen in the United States are subject. Special military equipment for use of the national guardsmen is to be issued by the department of war and the newly formed guardsmen will be required to take periodic military training.

Visiting Kings Not Banned In Berlin

(International News Service)
BERLIN, Sept. 5.—The royal anthem decreed against Berlin during war days has been definitely lifted and a visit to Republican Berlin has become a fixed point in the program of tourist kings.
Amanullah, then king of Afghanistan, was the first to break the ban. Then came King Fuad of Egypt. He was followed by King Faisal of the Iraq.
Royal visitors scheduled to arrive soon are the brother of the emperor of Japan and the Spanish crown prince.
But Berlin, disillusioned of pomp and glory, is getting apathetic toward royal visitors. Amanullah was received with all the splendor the republic could muster. Flag parades, receptions, gala opera performances, banquets were the order of the day and a special palace was renovated to provide regal quarters for a regal visitor.
Fuad stayed at the same palace, but the flags, the parades, the gala performances, and the banquets were considerably reduced.
Faisal stayed at a hotel, like any tourist, without flags, or parades, or banquets. A reception by President Hindenburg was the only official notice Germany took of his presence.

And in the cabarets, the surest-fire joke is the one warning visiting kings to be careful considering what happened to Fuad after their return from Berlin.

Former Sovereign Popular With Children

(International News Service)
PARIS, Sept. 5.—No woman sovereign was ever awaited more eagerly by her court than is ex-Queen Natalie of Serbia every morning by children in the Luxembourg Gardens. Her favorites are boys and girls under ten and to these she distributes barley sugar and gum drops.
The last queen to stroll informally through the gardens was Catherine de Medici but it is doubtful if she enjoyed the popularity of Queen Natalie. Although 71 years old, the former consort of Prince Milan daily walks from her pavilion at the Sion convent, near Montparnasse, to the church of Notre Dame des Champs.
It is on the way home that she holds court among children in the Luxembourg, none of whom would imagine that the kindly elderly woman once lived in a palace at Belgrade and captivated central Europe with her beauty.

Old Garden Hose Serves As Life Line
(International News Service)
ASHLAND, N. H., Sept. 5.—That garden hose does come in handy. While fishing from the wall which protects the river banks here, Leonard Morrill toppled into the water. Buster Brunt seeing the plight of the lad leaped in and held him aloft until aid arrived. With no life line or cord in sight, passers-by procured a garden hose and in that manner the pair were pulled from the water.
